The Conquest of Canada George Warburton, 2018-04-05 Reproduction of the original The Conquest of Canada by George Warburton

Enchanted Objects Allan Hepburn, 2010-03-27 Enchanted Objects investigates the relationship between visual art and contemporary fiction addressing the problems that arise when paintings, deluxe books, porcelains or statues are represented in contemporary novels. The distinction between objects and art objects depends on aesthetics. While some objects are authenticated through museum exhibits, others are hidden, broken, neglected, coveted, hoarded or salvaged. Allan Hepburn asks four broad questions about aesthetics and value: What is a detail in visual art? Is all art ornamental? Does the value of an object increase because it is fragile? What defines ugliness? Contemporary novels such as Tracy Chevalier's Girl with a Pearl Earring, Barry Unsworth's Stone Virgin and Bruce Chatwin's Utz offer implicit answers to these questions while critiquing museums and the determination to invest objects with value through display. Addressing current debates in museum studies, cultural studies, art history and literary criticism, Enchanted Objects develops an extensive theory of how contemporary literature engages with and relates to aesthetic objects.

The Conquest of Canada (Vol. 1&2) George Warburton, 2020-07-14 The Conquest of Canada in 2 volumes is one of the best known works by George Warburton that features the beginning of the European interest in the northern parts of the American continent. Starting in the late 15th century, French and British expeditions explored, colonized and fought over various places within North America in what constitutes present-day Canada. The colony of New France was claimed in 1534 with permanent settlements beginning in 1608. Although the English had laid claims to it in 1497 when John Cabot made landfall somewhere on the North American coast and had claimed the land for England on behalf of Henry VII, these claims were not exercised and England did not attempt to create a permanent colony. As for the French, however, Jacques Cartier planted a cross in the Gasp Peninsula in 1534 and claimed the land in the name of Francis I, creating a region called Canada the following summer. This carefully crafted e-artnow ebook is formatted for your eReader with a functional and detailed table of contents.

From Ancient Gaul to Canada Dennis Kish, From the Celtic peoples of ancient Gaul to the French settlers of Quebec, this is the epic tale of how we became Canadians. In 390 BC, the ancient ancestors of the French-speaking peoples lived in a huge region of western Europe known as Gaul. From Ancient Gaul to Canada charts the journey of this culture from Roman times through the formation of France, the founding of Canada's first European settlement at Quebec, the French Revolution, Confederation, the two World Wars and the creation of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. Sprinkled into this timeline is the migration of the French people who settled what was to become Canada and their fight for survival in their new home. The book connects its audience to their ancestors by sharing history from a personal and intimate point of view, diving into what it felt like to live in the past and to experience the hardships the French people endured across history.

Canadian Books for Young People/Livres canadiens pour la jeunesse, 3e Irma McDonough, 1980-12-15 This third completely revised edition contains hundreds of new entries for a total of almost 2 000 children's books and magazines carefully selected and described by a team of children's librarians. Entries are arranged by subject with reading levels indicated where necessary and are also listed in a separate author title index. A list of prize winning Canadian children's books and a basic book list for librarians, teachers and parents are included in this charmingly illustrated volume. Land, Power, and Economics on the Frontier of Upper Canada John Clarke, 2000-07-19. The prevailing ideology in Ontario at the time was a conservative culture that rejected everything American and attempted to preserve the best of the British world in the new Eden. Those building the state believed that a social and political hierarchy composed of those possessing a natural virtue would serve society best. In consequence a few individuals at the top of the hierarchy through their access to power came to control the bulk of the land, the basis of the economy. At the other end of the spectrum from the elite were those transforming the land and themselves through their own labour. How did the physical environment and government land policy affect the pattern of settlement and the choice of land for a viable farm? What was the price of land and how common was credit? Did the presence of reserved lands hinder or promote development? How extensive was land speculation and how did it operate? Clark brings these issues and more to the forefront integrating concepts and substantive issues through a problem oriented approach. Blending qualitative and quantitative approaches he weaves together surveyors records, personal and government correspondence, assessment rolls and land records to measure the pulse of this pre industrial society. The History of the Conquest of Canada George Warburton, 2020-12-17. Landscape and the Ideology of Nature in Exurbia K. Valentine Cadieux, Laura Taylor, 2013-05-07. This book explores the role of the ideology of nature in producing urban and exurban sprawl. It examines the ironies of residential development on the metropolitan fringe where the search for nature brings residents deeper into the world from which they are imagining their escape. Federal Express, technologically mediated communications, global supply chains and the anonymity of the global marketplace and where many of the central features of exurbia, very low density residential land use, monster homes and conversion of forested or rural land for housing contribute to the very problems that the social and environmental aesthetic of exurbia attempts to avoid. The volume shows how this contradiction to live in the green landscape and to protect the green landscape from urbanization gets caught up and represented in the ideology of nature and how this ideology in turn constitutes and is constituted by the landscapes being urbanized The Enchanted Jean Giraudoux,1950
