Abstract. The rural economy in modern conditions of the country's food security doctrine and import substitution policy is one of the main directions of socio-economic development of any society. The problems of sustainable development of the rural economy and the increase in growth indicators of the subjects of agrarian business are particularly interesting as a fundamental direction that ensures the socio-economic stability in rural areas. The paper identifies modern systemic issues that restrain the implementation of the sustainable development policy of the rural economy, and develops priority directions to ensure the efficiency of the agricultural sector of the economy in modern conditions of external and internal socio-political challenges. The paper contains the results of the analysis of volumetric indicators and growth rates of agricultural production, the level of performance of the state target program indicators for recent years, identifies the development trends, priority directions that ensure the efficiency of the rural economy, proposes organizational and economic measures to guarantee the production growth and increase the efficiency of agrarian production, intensify investment activities and strengthen state support for the rural economy.

1 Introduction

The Russian economy in modern socio-political conditions desperately needs the aggressive development rates in all production and servicing sectors of the national economy. One of the most important directions in achieving the socio-economic stability of the country is the sustainable progressive development of the rural economy, which provides the population with basic necessities and forms the country's food security. With the development of human society accompanied by the population growth, there is an urgent need for a continuous increase in the volume of food products and goods directly related to the growth of the agricultural potential as a raw material base of the economy for the processing industry. Currently, agricultural business is one of the priority areas that strengthens the rural economy and develops rural areas. It performs socially important functions to ensure socio-political stability in rural areas based on increased business activity and employment of the rural population. The problems of agricultural business development are fully demonstrated at all levels of management of the socio-economic processes of the modern society. This situation forces to give the development of the agrarian economy the status of one of the priority national projects aimed at implementing promising tasks not only for the development of agricultural production, but also turning the agricultural sector into an attractive sphere of activity thus creating favorable living conditions in rural areas. The priority areas for the development of the agricultural sphere of life, first of all, imply the steady provision of increased growth rates of volumetric indicators in the production sectors of agricultural raw materials, the achievement of financially sustainable work of agricultural business entities. Indeed, the achievement of high indicators of agricultural production efficiency causes the need to identify and solve a whole range of external and internal challenges of our time, among which a special place is occupied by the problems of formation and creation of socio-political, organizational and economic prerequisites for further development and successful functioning of agricultural business entities adapted to new economic conditions, corresponding to specific conditions of production and financial activities. All this clearly shows the relevance of the problem of further progressive development of the agricultural sector of the economy, which causes the need for additional study of this issue, the development of practical recommendations for the implementation of measures for the effective functioning of the agricultural business.

2 Materials and methods

The methodological basis for the study included earlier work of domestic researchers, including the authors, devoted to the analysis of the level of development of the domestic agricultural sector, as well as the problems of implementing the country's food security strategy. The general methodological basis of the study is the systemic analysis. The analysis of the used indicators was carried out by comparing the changes in values by years over 2017-2020 in order to identify fluctuations in these

Community Participation with Schools in Developing Countries Mikiko Nishimura, 2020-08-04 The Sustainable Development Goals SDGs 2016 2030 set by the United Nations in 2015 restated the importance of universal primary education for all and specifically discuss quality equity and inclusion in basic education To achieve this the role of community has been emphasized and participation has become a buzzword in international development over the past several decades Despite the growing attention to community participation in school management previous literature has shown mixed results in terms of its actual practice and its impacts on quality equity and inclusion in education This book deepens the contextual understanding of community in developing countries and its involvement in schools in general and its impact on quality equity and inclusion of school education in particular By presenting various case studies in Asia Africa Latin America and a post conflict state in Europe the book analyses commonalities and differences in the ways communities are involved and cast their impacts and challenges The book contributes knowledge on the ways in which community involvement could work in developing countries the detailed processes and factors that make community participation work in different dimensions and remaining challenges that scholars and practitioners still need to be concerned and mindful in the field This book will appeal to both researchers and practitioners who are concerned about the community participation approach for the SDGs

Handbook of BRICS and Emerging Economies P. B. Anand, Shailaja Fennell, Flavio Comim, 2021 Ever since Jim O Neill at Goldman Sachs coined the term BRICS in 2001 there have been many different assessments of these major emerging economies with some even proclaiming that the promise of the BRICS comprising Brazil Russia India China and South Africa is over However the so called arranged marriage still seems to be working well with the club having become a formal international forum with summit declarations ministerial meetings and numerous BRICS wide fora Is this euphoria misplaced Is there a BRICS model of economic and human development Are inequalities increasing and is this the denouncement of the economic successes The Handbook of BRICS and Emerging Economies presents a comprehensive and multi faceted analysis of the BRICS countries and other emerging economies exploring their economic social environmental and governance dimensions and other challenges It brings together multi disciplinary perspectives from more than fifty authors to examine how education contributed to the emergence of BRICS how BRICS are impacting African economies and how other emerging economies including Chile Mexico Turkey and others in Africa and Central Asia compare It observes the impact of governance challenges both within individual countries and in the forum for co operation amongst them what issues related to gender and identity based violence are prevalent and what the security implications are and the role of BRICS is in contributing to peace keeping operations

African Indigenous Vegetables in Urban Agriculture Charlie M. Shackleton, Margaret W. Pasquini, Axel W. Drescher, 2009-09-02 This book provides a comprehensive synthesis of current knowledge of the potential and challenges associated with the multiple roles use management and livelihood contributions of indigenous vegetables in urban agriculture in sub Saharan Africa There has been growing research and policy effort around urban agriculture in the region over the last two decades but never has it been integrated with work on under researched crops such as indigenous vegetables These species have multiple advantages including low input requirements adaptability to African environments high nutritional value and marked biodiversity cultural and local food security significance Yet they are overlooked in the modern world where recent emphasis has been directed to growing a limited range of exotic crops both for internal markets and for export to developed country markets This book provides evidence that in spite of this neglect in many African cities indigenous vegetables are still widely used cultivated and marketed It goes on to consider their potential to contribute to income generation and poverty alleviation of the growing numbers of urban dwellers in sub Saharan Africa whilst promoting urban greening and sustainability Based on critical analysis of the debates it presents a multidisciplinary analysis of the realities and future opportunities Poverty and Development in China Caizhen Lu, 2013-03-01 China has made huge economic strides in recent decades but poverty is still a major issue on the agenda for rural China Poverty and Development in China analyses how poverty is recognized and measured and how people in poverty are identified literally asking who is poor in China Lu Caizhen s research compares four approaches to poverty assessment China s official poverty identification method the participatory approach to poverty assessment the monetary approach and use of multidimensional poverty indicators Each of these is applied to the same population of households to identify the poor in rural Wuding County Yunnan Province The analysis shows that there is in fact very little overlap of households identified as poor by the various means and that choice of approach does matter in the outcome of who is identified as poor This has implications at the theoretical methodological and policy levels Lu discusses these in detail concluding that at present there is a need to shift away from poverty reduction strategies that narrowly emphasize income generation activities as these are often short term efforts Instead the focus should move towards a broader combination of short term and long term strategies to break poverty s inter linked structural causes
