Remote Sensing for Environmental Sciences E. Schanda,2012-12-06 The public s serious concern about the uncertainties and dangers of the consequences of human activities on environmental quality demands policies to control the situation and to prevent its deterioration But far reaching decisions on the environmental policy are impaired or even made impossible as long as the relevant ecological relations are not sufficiently understood and large scale quantitative information on the most important parameters is not available in sufficient quality and quantity The techniques of remote sensing offer new ways of procuring data on natural phenomena with three main advantages the large distance between sensor and object prevents interference with the environmental conditions to be measured the potentiality for large scale and even global surveys yields a new dimension for the investigations of the environmental parameters the extremely wide spectral range covered by the whole diversity of sensors discloses many properties of the environmental media not detectable within a single wave band as e g the visible These significant additions to the conventional methods of environmental studies and the particular qualification of several remote sensing methods for quantitative determination of the natural parameters makes this new investigation technique an important tool both to the scientists studying the ecological relationship and the administration in charge of the environmental planning and protection

Underwater Research E.A. Drew,2013-07-19 Underwater Research is primarily a review of problems in underwater viewing and hearing and acoustics The chapters in this book are papers collated from the symposia of the Underwater Association This book explores the need for the further study of the physiological and psychological reactions of divers The book also concludes that diving is still the best way in studying the benthic ecology and sunken wrecks and cities The text is divided into 25 detailed chapters Most of the topics in the text address the common problems encountered by divers such as in hearing and viewing Specifically problems in diver communication depth estimation color distinction are some of the topics covered Other chapters deal with the psychological reactions such as anxiety narcosis and visual attention Also some chapters tackle solutions and experiments for the improvement of diving techniques and equipment This reference is helpful to divers students and scientists involved in marine and environmental science
