Protecting Promoting And Supporting Breast Feeding:

Protecting, Promoting and Supporting Breastfeeding Mary A. Uyoga, Seema Miharshahi, Bindi Borg, 2025-03-14

Breastfeeding is widely recognized as the best start to life for all infants and one of the most effective and cost effective investments nations can make for the future health of their community The World Health Organisations recommend exclusive breastfeeding for the first 6 months of life and introduction of nutritionally adequate and safe complementary solid foods at 6 months together with continued breastfeeding up to 2 years of age or beyond Enabling women to breastfeed is key to the sustainable development goals as it improves nutrition ensures food security and reduces inequalities between and within countries Lack of breastfeeding is an important issue with health social and economic implications Infants who do not receive breast milk are more likely to experience infections and poorer health outcomes than breastfed infants In addition there are also health implications for mothers who do not breastfeed

The One Best Way? Tasnim Nathoo,Aleck Ostry,2009-07-08 In recent years breastfeeding has been prominently in the public eye in relation to debates on issues ranging from parental leave policies work family balance public decency the safety of our food supply and public health concerns such as health care costs and the obesity epidemic Breastfeeding has officially been considered the one best way for feeding infants for the past 150 years of Canadian history

This book examines the history and evolution of breastfeeding policies and practices in Canada from the end of the nineteenth century to the turn of the twenty first The authors historical approach allows current debates to be situated within a broader social political cultural and economic context Breastfeeding shifted from a private matter to a public concern at the end of the nineteenth century Over the course of the next century the best way to feed infants was often scientifically or politically determined and guidelines for mothers shifted from one generation to the next Drawing upon government reports academic journals archival sources and interviews with policy makers and breastfeeding advocates the authors trace trends patterns ideologies and policies of breastfeeding in Canada Breastfeeding Sarah W. Ying, 2005 The rate of breastfeeding in the United States has risen and fallen over time as a result of changing lifestyles and the availability of substitutes for human milk However since the 1970s the rates of breastfeeding initiation and duration have increased in part due to the increasing medical evidence of the significant health benefits both to mothers and children The federal government s Health Objectives for 2010 are for 75% of mothers to initiate breastfeeding at the time of birth and for 50% to continue breastfeeding until their infants reach 6 months of age Current rates are about 69.5% at the time of hospital discharge and 32.5% at 6 months of age The health benefits to the infant include the high nutritional quality of human milk and a decrease in various infectious and other diseases of infancy that are reduced by the anti microbial anti inflammatory and immunological stimulating agents present Mothers seem to benefit with a more rapid return to the pre pregnancy state of their bodies improved glucose and lipid metabolism delayed ovulation and the possible reduction of certain cancers This new book examines the impact on health employment and society laws and government support of this important health action Midwifery Preparation for Practice Sally Pairman, Sally K. Evidence-based Care for Breastfeeding Mothers Maria Pollard,2023-08-29 Mapped to the UNICEF Baby Friendly Learning Outcomes this new edition of Pollard's essential textbook ensures readers are equipped with the essential knowledge and skills to effectively promote and support breastfeeding mothers. Breastfeeding is a major public health issue. Not only does breastmilk provide all the nutrients a baby needs for their first six months but research shows it also helps to protect infants from infection and reduce obesity as well as helping to protect mothers from some diseases in later life. Although many women want to breastfeed rates drop rapidly in the first days and weeks after giving birth. Women need the support of their midwives and health visitors when establishing breastfeeding and throughout their children's infancy. This comprehensive and accessible text covers anatomy and physiology, building relationships, essential skills and good practice guidance dealing with common problems, public health considerations, mothers needing additional support, babies with special needs and complementary feeding and weaning. Suitable for midwifery and nursing students as well as practitioners undertaking continuing professional development. Evidence-based Care for Breastfeeding Mothers is designed to aid learning. Each chapter begins with specific learning outcomes linked to the Baby Friendly Learning Outcomes, key fact boxes, clinical scenarios and activities.

Lactation: A Foundational Strategy for Health Promotion Suzanne Hetzel Campbell, 2021-01-25 Healthcare professionals including lactation consultants and nurses have the unique challenge of educating the community and their patients on healthy breastfeeding and the benefits of lactation. However, breastfeeding is not efficiently represented in texts specific to health promotion. With her 30 years' experience educating undergraduate and graduate nursing students and interprofessional healthcare providers on maternal infant health and lactation, Suzanne Hetzel Campbell is breaking that tradition. Lactation: A Foundational Strategy for Health Promotion uses evidence-based research and a person-centered care framework to empower healthcare practitioners to advocate for and support families in their breastfeeding ventures.
