Raising Kids Ok:

Raising Kids O.K. Dorothy E. Babcock, Terry D. Keepers, 1976 Parents as Educators Keith J. Topping, 2025-08-05

Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children and was supported by legislation. Particularly when children had special needs, parents required structured training and support to ensure they effectively sustained their vital role as educators at home. Many large scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world at the time for example Home Start, Portage Home Visiting Projects and Paired Reading Projects. However not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access. Some projects demonstrated spectacular results and high cost effectiveness while others proved more disappointing. Originally published in 1986, this book critically analyses over 600 international English language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes. In addition, a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials. After an introductory overview, the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed, as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school. Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters, starting with ordinary children. Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need, from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning, systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues. Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use, while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments. This volume will be of major interest to teachers, psychologists, social workers, community health personnel, community educationalists, researchers, many others working with parents and children, and to some parents themselves. This book is a re-issue originally published in 1986. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

Handbook on Parent Education Marvin J. Fine, 2014-05-10

Handbook on Parent Education presents a contemporary picture of the state of the parent education movement. It tackles a number of critical issues such as the programs that are available or when parent education should begin. Different models of parent education are described along with parenting programs for youth. The application of parenting programs for specific groups including foster parents, parents of preschoolers, abusive parents, and parents of handicapped children is also discussed. Comprised of 14 chapters, this book begins with an overview of the parent education movement as well as several prototype programs and some ethical issues. The distinction between education and therapy is explained and parent education with special interest groups is described. In addition, problems of research and evaluation and a projection for the future are presented. Subsequent chapters focus on the state of the nuclear family in American society during the 1970s, Rudolf Dreikurs' impact on childrearing practices, and his contribution to individual psychology together with the social context of child behavior Haim Ginott's approach to parent education and the effects of parent effectiveness training on families Transactional analysis approaches to parent education and parent education as a strategy for the prevention of child abuse are also examined This monograph will appeal to educators parents sociologists and educational psychologists The Second Handbook on Parent Education Marvin J. questions can be summed into one primary question our kids are asking Am I safe As parents we answer this question each day by how we relate to our children whether we realize it or not That s because our homes reflect our story For some that story is defined by brokenness For others it s defined by love laughter and joy For most it s a blend of the two Have you ever considered what kind of story you re writing for your children Or what effect your story is having on those little ones you love most One of the most hopeful yet scary realizations is that the quality of our story influences how well we coauthor our kid s stories And that s what the Safe House Study is all about helping you coauthor beautiful stories for your children Everyone knows parenting is difficult enough But what if it were simpler What if there was a way to become more confident in how we parent To know that we re coauthoring beautiful stories for our kids Both science and the Bible show us that the most important thing we can provide for our kids is a place of emotional safety But what is emotional safety In Safe House a 6 session video based small group or parent study author and child psychology professor Joshua Straub takes us on a journey through our own story provides practical ways of becoming an emotionally safe parent and helps us learn how to best answer the most important question our children are asking Am I safe Quick Relief for Children's Ministry Leaders Ivy Beckwith,1998 50 in 50 Harry Harrison,2001-06-02 Presents a retrospective collection of fifty short stories accompanied by notes and introductory material on the author s work
