

The sun on the night blooming cereus; or pure in spirit as the mountain stream, bubbling in the pine-bush hollow; an earnest and rugged old character as the granite peaks; and as wide in sympathy as the wide spreading desert, is Sharlot M. Hall, the true lady of the old American's Mansion and Arizona's beloved garden laureate.

Sharlot Hall's life is a record of the past, present, and future. She is an indelible way, in Arizona. As a child she learned the pluck of the old immigrant trader as a girl she knew him of the early cattle country; as a young woman she studied in the saloons of Arizona's robust youth; and mature woman she won the recognition of the charming as a hostess; as a devoted sister would she earn her "reputation" of Arizona in the days when girls with the hair and manner who's only girl was given to those things held dear. Her life well represents the recorded generations of the passing youth, women, and generations and her poems are the best arranged here as the historic photographs chosen to be projected upon the screen for later generations to behold."
