The Child in American Evangelicalism and the Problem of Affluence David A. Sims, 2009-06-01 This work presents an evangelical theology of the child nurtured in the context of American evangelicalism and affluence. It employs an eclectic theological critical method to produce a theological anthropology of the affluent American evangelical child (AAEC) through interdisciplinary evangelical engagement of American history, sociology, and economics. Sims articulates how affluence constitutes a significant impediment to evangelical nurture of the AAEC in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Thus the problem he addresses is nurture in evangelical affluence conceived as a theological anthropological problem. Nurture in the cultural matrices of the evangelical affluence generated by technological consumer capitalism in the U.S. impedes spiritual and moral formation of the AAEC for discipleship in the way of the cross. This impediment risks disciplinary formation of the AAEC for capitalist culture cultivates delusional belief that life consists in an abundance of possessions and hinders the practice of evangelical liberation of the poor on humanity's underside. The result is the AAEC's spiritual/moral lack in late modernity. Chapter 1 introduces the problem of the AAEC. Chapters 2 and 3 provide a diachronic lens for the theological anthropology of the AAEC through critical assessment of the theological anthropologies of the child in Jonathan Edwards, Horace Bushnell, and Lawrence Richards. Chapters 4 and 5 constitute the synchronic perspective of the AAEC. Chapter 4 presents an evangelical sociology of the AAEC drawing upon William Corsaro's theory of interpretive reproductions, and chapter 5 constructs an evangelical theology of the AAEC through critical interaction with John Schneider's moral theology of affluence. Chapter 6, Whither the AAEC, concludes with a recapitulation of the work and a forecast of possible futures for the AAEC in the twenty-first century.

The "Sense of the Faith" in History John J. Burkhard, OFM Conv., 2022-01-15 While taught by Vatican II the sense of the faith sensus fidei has had little official impact in the Catholic Church What would the church look like if it took this conciliar teaching to heart To address this neglect John Burkhard locates the historical roots of the teaching and its emergence at Vatican II It attempts to better understand the sense of the faith in the light of other fundamental teachings of the council and challenges the hierarchical church to invite all the faithful to rightfully participate in the prophetic ministry of the whole church closely allied with Pope Francis's call for a more synodal church

The Perspective of Love Russell J. Snell, 2014-04-21 While many of the Reformers considered natural law unproblematic many Protestants consider natural law a Catholic thing and not persuasive Natural law it is thought competes with the Gospel overlooks the centrality of Christ posits a domain of pure nature and overlooks the noetic effects of sin This Protestant Prejudice however strong overlooks developments in contemporary natural law quite capable and willing to incorporate the usual objections into natural law While the natural law itself is universal and invariant theories about the natural law vary widely The Protestant Prejudice may respond to natural law understood from within the modes of common sense and classical metaphysics but largely overlooks contemporary natural law beginning from the first person account of subjectivity and practical reason Consequently the sophisticated thought of John Paul II Martin Rhonheimer Germain Grisez and John Finnis is overlooked Further the work of Bernard Lonergan allows for a natural law admitting of noetic sin eagerly incorporating grace community the limits of history a real but limited autonomy and the centrality of Christ in a natural law that is both graced and natural

The Identity of Christian Morality Ann Marie Mealey, 2016-03-03 This book argues that moral theology has yet to embrace the recommendations of the Second Vatican Council concerning the ways in which it is to be renewed One of the reasons for this is the lack of consensus between theologians regarding the nature content and uniqueness of Christian morality After highlighting the strengths and weaknesses of the so called autonomy and faith ethic schools of thought Mealey argues that there is little dividing them and that in some instances both schools are simply defending one aspect of a hermeneutical dialectic In an attempt to move away from the divisions between proponents of the faith ethic and autonomy positions Mealey enlists the help of the hermeneutical theory of Paul Ricoeur She argues that many of the disagreements arising from the Christian proprium debate can be overcome if scholars look to the possibilities opened up by Ricoeur's hermeneutics of interpretation Mealey also argues that the uniqueness of Christian morality is more adequately explained in terms of a specific identity self that is constantly subject to change and revision in light of many often conflicting moral sources She advocates a move away from attempts to explain the uniqueness of Christian morality in terms of one specific unchanging context motivation norm divine command or value By embracing the possibilities opened up by Ricoeurian hermeneutics Mealey explains how concepts such as revelation tradition orthodoxy and moral conscience may be understood in a hermeneutical way without being deemed sectarian or unorthodox
