3 pages | 653 words

"Perceptions of the aged's worth, as well as their demographic and socioeconomic status have varied enormously according to historical time and societal context" (Achenbaum & Stearns, 1978). As discussed in the text, attitudes and perspectives on older women and men throughout history have been both positive and negative. For example, the Greeks and the Romans viewed the aging process as unappealing, whereas Native American groups viewed their elders in a more positive light and they respected and valued them (Bonder & Bello-Haas, 2018). In contemporary society, because I have more than a few members of my immediate and extended family in the 65+ age range appearing to be living life to the fullest, I do not believe I have any preconceived perceptions about this population. These individuals that I refer to are my role models for successful aging. "Older adults' attitudes and behavior differ in ways than can dramatically affect their quality of life and life satisfaction" (Bonder & Bello-Haas, 2018). As I reflect on these family members, I notice that they accept the physical and psychosocial changes that are a natural progression of the aging process. For example, when their loss of hearing began to negatively impact their daily lives, they were proactive in pursuing medical help and now wear hearing aids. Also, in retirement, they pursued new interests and cultivated a new group of new friends. Therefore, I see these people as making proactive decisions that influence their aging and daily lives. Of course, on the other hand, there are those individuals that do not appear to age well. So many factors impact the aging process. Components such as genetics, socioeconomic, health care, personality, and lifestyle choices. For example, they may suffer from painful diseases, live in isolation, or simply make poor lifestyle choices. They may choose to smoke, eat poorly, ignore doctor's orders, or fail to exercise. Each experiences aging uniquely. As a professional, it is important to be cognizant of the significant changes that occur during later life as we treat individuals in this age bracket. "Later life is characterized by significant change —change in physical capacity, change in roles, change in family constellations, change in living arrangements. All these changes can present daunting challenges in the absence of a sense of purpose and meaning" (Bonder & Bello-Haas, 2018). Therefore my role as an occupational therapist will be to help my clients navigate the aging process by helping them adapt to these inevitable changes so they can continue to live life to the fullest. I believe working with the elderly is very similar to working with other populations because each client/patient is unique. We treat the 'whole person' and age is one of the factors to be considered. If we understand that aging is a process that each person experiences in their own way, then preconceived notions should not exist or interfere with treatment. Aging is a continuum and occupational therapists need to be knowledgeable at all points on this continuum to best serve our clients. My therapeutic use of self is encouraged, motivated and determined by the set of client factors that I am presented with...

Charles Schaefer, Lois J. Carey, 1994-10-01 Play therapy and family therapy both are well established therapeutic paradigms Often however play therapists have minimal contact with the nuclear family of which their child patient is a member Similarly family therapists frequently view young children as disruptive and exclude them from family sessions By combining both play and family treatment modalities as this unique book Family Play Therapy suggests all family members can participate in a therapeutic process which in its inclusion of everyone is more genuine and therefore successful Family Play Therapy encourages the blending of play therapy and family therapy by discussing and demonstrating various techniques and diverse theoretical approaches that will enable readers to broaden their repertoire when working with families and their young children Each author describes his or her own creative avenue of expression such as puppetry psychodrama and sandplay which facilitate the family's communication helping members to find new ways to hear each other Family play therapy and play therapy need not be exclusionary The two approaches actually can enhance and enrich each other While each therapist ultimately will use his or her own ideas in the critical combining of both methods Family Play Therapy offers various possibilities and as such helps therapists to help their family patients to be readily engaged in treatment and to experience therapy as a fun inclusive transforming time together Systems of Family Therapy Robert Sherman, Don

Byram Karasu, 2013-10-22 In Life Witness Evolution of the Psychotherapist T Byram Karasu demonstrates how a young therapist can become an expert clinician by transcending his own school of therapy Every young therapist attempts to perfect his skills by anchoring onto a single paradigm and becoming an expert technician of that particular school Within the first five to ten years of practice the so called experiential evolution phase the therapist finds that no single paradigm is suitable for treating all psychopathology The therapist thus begins to appropriate techniques from other schools of psychotherapy and by shifting paradigms synchronizes himself with the patient s mind It is from this synchronization that all his techniques begin to evolve and an expert clinician can evolve into a master psychotherapist The therapist who has transcended his school of psychotherapy now must transcend the field of psychotherapy itself If he wants to address the patient s existential issues as well the therapist first has to come to terms with those issues himself After all the therapist can take the patient only so far as he himself has come Life Witness demonstrates that this formative evolution phase of a therapist encompasses a broad education in literature philosophy and spirituality Karasu ultimately concludes that therapists must find the meaning and purpose of life before they can cultivate an authentic self and become someone whose presence is itself therapeutic Once this occurs all therapeutic messages will naturally emanate from within
