Gardner, 1995 This two part study investigates potential reforms of commodity programs in the context of the legislative debate on the 1995 farm bill Brian D Wright considers a farm bill written on a clean slate unconstrained by previous policy Such legislation would depart radically from the current policy structure Bruce L Gardner analyzes a set of options that make a noticeable difference for the main commodities yet are reachable from current policy and have visible political support If followed Gardner's proposals would move agriculture along the path laid out by Wright

2015 -16 The State of Agricultural Commodity Markets Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,2018-04-18 Global trade in agricultural and food products has grown rapidly in recent decades with countries becoming more engaged in this trade whether as exporters or importers This trend is expected to continue over the coming decades As a consequence trade will play an increasingly important role in influencing the extent and nature of food security across all regions of the globe The challenge has therefore become one of ensuring that the expansion of agricultural trade works for and not against the elimination of hunger food insecurity and malnutrition This edition of The State of Agricultural Commodity Markets aims to reduce the current polarization of views on the impacts of agricultural trade on food security and on the manner in which agricultural trade should be governed to ensure that increased trade openness is beneficial to all countries By providing evidence and clarity on a range of topics the report seeks to contribute to a more informed debate on policy choices and to identify required improvements in the policy processes within which these choices are made

Trade, Food Security, and Human Rights Ying Chen,2016-02-24 Most scholars attribute systemic causes of food insecurity to poverty human overpopulation lack of farmland and expansion of biofuel programs However as Chen argues here another significant factor has been overlooked The current food insecurity is not absolute food shortage since global food production still exceeds the need of the entire world population but a problem of how to secure access to resources Distorted agricultural trade undermines world food distribution and uneven distribution impedes people's access to food particularly in poor developing countries Examining EU and US agricultural policies and World Trade Organization negotiations in agriculture the author argues how they affect the international agricultural trade claiming that current food insecurity is the result of inequitable food distribution and trade practices The international trade regime is advised to reconcile trade rules with the consideration of food security issues Several other enforceable solutions to reduce world hunger and malnutrition are also advanced including national capacity building the improvement of governance and strategic development of biofuel programs This book will be of great interest to agricultural trade professionals and consultant policy makers in the EU US and developing countries Students and researchers with a concentration on international trade agriculture economics global governance and international law will benefit greatly from this study
