Managing The Global Globalization Employment And Quality Of Life:

Managing the Global Donald Lamberton, 2001      Managing the Global Donald Lamberton, 2001-10-26 The fifth volume in a continuing series on Human Security and Global Governance set up by the TODA Institute this book edited by Donald Lamberton focuses on that most misinterpreted of notions globalization We live we are told in a global village McLuhan a post industrial Bell information society Porat Others have suggested that this is the age of the end of history Fukuyama But it can equally be suggested that we live in an increasingly complex world and that this era might well be characterized as the Age of Regionalization Nationalization Localization and Fragmentation It might equally well be called the beginning of history in which for the first time over two thirds of humanity claims the right to be history s subject and not its object But as Lamberton and his contributors show even the global village as perceived by the international traveller with its ubiquitous Coca Cola Hiltons and McDonalds hides a very different reality under the veneer of similitude Globalization and tribalization they argue are two sides of the same coin globalization is both uniting and dividing the world in entirely new and intricate patterns This book looks at the reality beneath the buzzwords on the level of employment economics and quality of life It looks inter alia at the immense displacement of peoples that has occurred with the sudden emergence of newly wealthy regions at the worldwide development that has been called Pancapitalism the role of women in this new global society and how riches and quality of life can and must be differentiated Since its inception in 1996 the TODA Institute has devoted its efforts to working on all issues associated with human society the individual and peace both on a domestic and international level This volume bringing together prominent scholars from all over the world represents an important addition to its list as well as being an immensely valuable achievement in its own right      Prevention and Management of Soil Erosion and Torrential Floods Milutinović, Slobodan, Živković, Snežana, 2021-12-31 Soil erosion and torrential floods as destructive processes have serious implications on the economy society and environment The severity of torrential floods lies in their sudden occurrence and high intensity and hence the defense against torrential floods is very complex and demanding Much remains to be discovered about soil erosion and torrential floods prevention management legislation practices and solutions worldwide Thus a better understanding of various prevention and management developments on soil erosion and torrential floods across different contexts is needed to assess their impact on sustainability especially in the changed climate conditions Prevention and Management of Soil Erosion and Torrential Floods investigates the problems of erosion and torrential floods and opportunities for the prevention management and control of these destructive processes It highlights the importance of the prevention and management practices of soil erosion and torrential floods with respect to the exchange of knowledge and best practices Covering topics such as dam maintenance wind erosion and natural disasters it is ideal for environmentalists environmental engineers crisis response specialists policymakers government officials academicians students experts practitioners and researchers in the fields of soil erosion torrential flood environmental protection sustainable development

Understanding Security Practices in South Asia Monika Barthwal-Datta, 2012-05-04 This book explores the ways in which non state actors NSAs in South Asia are involved in securitizing non traditional security challenges in the region at the sub state level South Asia is the epicentre of some of the most significant international security challenges today Yet the complexities of the region s security dynamics remain under researched While traditional security issues such as inter state war border disputes and the threat of nuclear devastation in South Asia remain high on the agendas of policy makers and academics both within and beyond the region scant attention has been paid to non traditional or new security challenges Drawing on various case studies this work offers an innovative analysis of how NSAs in South Asia are shaping security discourses in the region and tackling security challenges at the sub state level Through its critique of securitization theory the book calls for a new approach to studying security practices in South Asia one which considers NSAs as legitimate security actors This book will be of much interest to students of security studies Asian security Asian politics critical security studies and IR in general

Exodus From Empire Terrence E. Paupp, 2006-11-20 This book lays out a comprehensive vision for a new world order based on cooperation between the developing world and leading Left countries in Latin America Arguing that the ravages of corporate capitalism are unsustainable Terrence E Paupp presents an energetic critique of the problems of empire and looks ahead to a global countermovement against the IMF and US hegemony

America and the World: The Double Bind Kevin P. Clements, 2017-07-05 As the world s first democracy with a written constitution and Bill of Rights the United States has stood for global aspirations toward democratic liberty equality and solidarity since its formation in 1776. However, as it developed into an empire by the late nineteenth century, the United States also has threatened the liberties of other peoples including Native Americans, Hawaiians, Latin Americans, Asians, and Africans. The American role in world affairs has long been polarized around two conflicting images and strategies. In the name of counter terrorism, the Bush administration pursued a largely unilateralist policy in the Middle East and elsewhere. Yet in the name of protecting its national sovereignty, the United States also has rejected most of the recent multilateral treaties that strive to contain violence by fortifying the rule of international law. A unilateralist strategy also goes largely against the U.S. postwar multilateralism which established the United Nations and its specialized agencies. This volume explores these contradictions. Contributors include Kevin P. Clements, Tom Coffman, Audrey Kitagawa, Jeffrey F. Addicott, Steven Zunes, Vivien Stewart, Kathy Ferguson, Phyllis Turnbull, Bilveer Singh, Ibrahim G. Aoude, Richard Falk, Ann Wright, Beverley Kleever, Linda Groff, George Kent, Majid Tehranian, Mohammad Ali Terrence Paupp, Gillian Young, Mihay Simaii, and David Krieger. The annual publication Peace Policy, sponsored by the Toda Institute for Global Peace and Policy Research, is now in its ninth year. It is dedicated to providing a forum for the discussion of all issues concerning peace policy and the rights and responsibilities of global citizenship. This latest volume fulfills that commitment.

Challenges to Global Security Hussein Solomon, 2007-10-24. Ours is an age of great upheaval where change sometimes appears to be the only constant. Three of the most important forces driving such change are globalization, regionalization, and democratization. This substantial work makes a concerted attempt to understand these forces and to show how they impact on the vitally important question of global security. The volume brings together a wide range of scholars who hold diverse views and who collectively make a very significant contribution to current discourses within international relations and contemporary geopolitics. Such is the book's breadth that it covers every region of the world, addressing in turn security problems in the USA, Latin America, South Asia, South East Asia, Europe, Russia, and environs, the Middle East, and Africa. Each discourse receives substantial coverage from economics and politics to religion, religious fundamentalism, and human rights. Challenges to Global Security offers one of the richest comparative volumes yet to be published on the subject and will have strong appeal to students, scholars, and policymakers in the fields of international relations, ethics, and politics.

Debates in Peace Journalism Jake Lynch, 2008-11-05. In Debates in Peace Journalism, Jake Lynch traces the major controversies in this emerging field and links his own contributions to them with important new material.

Music and Conflict Transformation Olivier Urbain, 2007-10-24. In 1999, the Israeli conductor Daniel Barenboim and the Palestinian writer Edward Said organised a concert in Weimar in which half the performers were Palestinians and the other half Israelis. The performance itself and the rehearsals which preceded it had a lasting effect on all the participants. How far can the relationship between music and politics be used to promote a more peaceful world? That is the central question which motivates this challenging new work by some of the leading musicians and music scholars of our time. Combining theory from experienced academics such as Johan Galtung, Cindy Cohen, and Karen Abi Ezzi with compelling stories from musicians like Yair Dalal the book also includes an exclusive interview with folk legend Pete Seeger In each instance practical and theoretical perspectives have been combined in order to explore music s role in conflict transformation The book is divided into five sections The first Frameworks reflects in depth on the connections between music and peace while the second Music and Politics discusses the impact of music on society The third section Healing and Education offers examples of the transformative power of music in prisons and settings of conflict resolution while the fourth Stories from the Field tells true stories about music s impact in the Middle East and elsewhere Finally Reflections encourages the reader to consider a personal evaluation of the work with a view to further explorations of the power of music to promote peace
