The Developing World E. Ike Udogu, 2012-10-04 Nation states in the developing world have seen a renaissance in their political social and economic structures Newly industrializing countries like Brazil Mexico China and India are poised to claim the 21st century as their own But economic conditions in many nations of the developing world still leave much to be desired especially with respect to its marginalized citizens whose incomes are often less than two dollars a day Scholars continue to ask what academics political actors economic entrepreneurs and others committed to tackling the bane of underdevelopment in the developing world can do to improve the plight of these nations destitute populations The Developing World Critical Issues in Politics and Society explores the challenges presented by political cultural religious social and economic practices to the future development of these nation states The essays gathered here written by seasoned scholars with deep social political and academic roots in Africa Asia and Latin America explain how improvements in politics social arrangements and information communication technologies contribute to the effectiveness of emerging nations internal politics and their influence on world affairs Individual essays consider such key issues as how to develop more efficiently the processes of liberal democratization how to apply more uniformly the law enforcement policies of governments to all citizens in a society how the marginalization of women hampers national development how the political development of Mexico as a linguistic regional power has influenced the rest of Central America how development and protection of the environment are linked how an effective application of information communication technologies can enhance the quality of education and boost growth at all levels in a polity This work will interest scholars focused on the developing world social and public policy international politics and social and political theory

The Governance of Climate Change Adaptation in Developing Countries: The Case of National Disaster Management in Bangladesh and Pakistan in Comparative Perspective Tina Peissker, 2013-06-01 The prospect of the adverse effects that global climate change will have on human societies opened up a discourse about the way adaptation should be managed In order to finance adaptation measures in the most severe affected countries the parties of the Kyoto Protocol established the Adaptation Fund in 2007 In view of the limited resources that are available for adaptation scales for the prioritization of countries that are based on their suspected vulnerability have been developed in literature But so far indicators of vulnerability reflect only the general indicators of human development and therefore fail to capture the complex structures of vulnerability In order to capture the mentioned complexity in a more satisfactory way this book highlights the theory of collective learning The collective learning approach assumes that vulnerability can be significantly decreased when governance systems adapt to external changes through collective learning processes This study connects to this notion and therefore it assesses the influence of collective learning processes on the vulnerability of the Bangladeshi and Pakistani society towards flood hazards This determinant of vulnerability is used to capture the matter's complexity manufacturing Green Web-II Medani P. Bhandari,2022-09-01 This second edition of the book Green Web II Standards and Perspectives from the IUCN Program Policy Development in Environment Conservation Domain with reference to India Pakistan Nepal and Bangladesh investigates the IUCN s role in global biodiversity conservation policy as well as in national program development in India Pakistan Nepal and Bangladesh It explores how nature protection priorities and approaches are promoted or addressed by IUCN and how environment conservation policies are created and maintained in states of South Asia with different capacities It also evaluates IUCN s competency in biodiversity climate change nature conservation and environmental policy formulation at the global regional and country levels This book adds to our knowledge firstly by contributing to a small but growing body of work on the sociology of international organizations International Governmental Organizations IGOs have previously been mainly the subject of political science Secondly it critically explores one of the largest and most active nature conservation organizations in the world Thirdly it also explores how IUCN actually goes about building protectoral programs with individual member nations Finally the research also shows the historical development of global institutions and IUCN s activities with member nations in helping to define or redefine the concept of global governance The outcomes of this research will also be beneficial for global collaboration networking and for the identification of common concerns among the many environmental and conservational organizations at the international and national level In this broader sense the research outcomes might be beneficial to constituencies of the global North as well as global South because of the nature and coverage of IUCN and its role in conservation policy formation This effort may serve as a model for additional research on international organizations Technical topics discussed in the book include The Motivation for Environmental Conservation How personal efforts make a difference The Role of International Environment Conservation Organizations The Political Economy of Organizations Network theory Institutional theory Stakeholder theory Governance theory Governance performance and Competitiveness Popularity indices Knowledge creation and diffusion Conservation commons Strategic Management and Sustainability Transitions Michael Zhang,2023-12-01 The subject of sustainability transitions has in the past decade or so become an established research field for academics policy makers and practitioners alike Conceptual and theoretical developments in the field have gradually advanced from the perspectives of socio technical systems and business models Scholars contend that it is the interactions of the networks of actors technologies and institutions that drive transition processes toward sustainability In this volume we further advance this line of inquiry with a special reference to strategic management of sustainability transitions in both theory and practice In theoretical development we have selected three chapters to encompass the themes of 1 the interactions between ecological systems and human systems 2 a critique on the continuous expansion of large multinational companies and their strategic control of key resource inputs through the lenses of circular economy and natural resource based view and 3 a multi stakeholder ecosystems framework for the management of sustainability transitions with structural alignment of focal value propositions The United Nations Sustainable Development Goals SDGs are critically addressed and empirically examined It will become an essential reader and a reference book for researchers and postgraduate students interested in strategic management international business innovation studies consumer behavior and public administration

Aid Paradoxes in Afghanistan Nematullah Bizhan, 2017-08-14 The relationship between aid and state building is highly complex and the effects of aid on weak states depend on donors interests aid modalities and the recipient s pre existing institutional and socio political conditions This book argues that in the case of Afghanistan the country inherited conditions that were not favourable for effective state building Although some of the problems that emerged in the post 2001 state building process were predictable the types of interventions that occurred including an aid architecture which largely bypassed the state the subordination of state building to the war on terror and the short horizon policy choices of donors and the Afghan government reduced the effectiveness of the aid and undermined effective state building By examining how foreign aid affected state building in Afghanistan since the US militarily intervened in Afghanistan in late 2001 until the end of President Hamid Karzai s first term in 2009 this book reveals the dynamic and complex relations between the Afghan government and foreign donors in their efforts to rebuild state institutions The work explores three key areas how donors supported government reforms to improve the taxation system how government reorganized the state s fiscal management system and how aid dependency and aid distribution outside the government budget affected interactions between state and society Given that external revenue in the form of tribute subsidies and aid has shaped the characteristics of the state in Afghanistan since the mid eighteenth century this book situates state building in a historical context This book will be invaluable for practitioners and anyone studying political economy state building international development and the politics of foreign aid
