Managing Scarce Resources For Jails:

Managing Scarce Resources for Jails Mark Pogrebin, 1982 The Management of Correctional Institutions Marilyn D. McShane, Franklin P. Williams, 1993 Section 1 pages 1 to 68 presents an overview of the literature on prison management and the results of a national survey of wardens which enquired into actual management styles problem solving techniques and decision making approaches The national survey aimed to determine how much the literature reflected the wardens management practices Findings showed that corrections management largely reflects the literature in that it has inconsistencies an emphasis on personnel experience and an inward focus These results were used to develop a perspective focusing on a humane and caring relationship between manager and staff Section 2 pages 72 to 301 contains abstracts of the 100 most important works both essay and research on correctional institution management The Jail John Irwin, 1987-06-01 Combining extensive interviews with his own experience as an inmate John Irwin constructs a powerful and graphic description of the big city jail Unlike prisons which incarcerate convicted felons jails primarily confine arrested persons not yet charged or convicted of any serious crime Irwin argues that jail disorients and degrades and instead of controlling the disreputable actually increases their number of helping to indoctrinate new recruits to the rabble class In a forceful conclusion Irwin addresses the issue of jail reform and the matter of social control demanded by society Federal Probation, 1992 Programs and Activities Mark D. Martin, Joshua M. Price, 2016-08-04 As recently as five years ago mass incarceration was widely considered to be a central permanent feature of the political and social landscape The number of people in U S prisons is still without historic parallel anywhere in the world or in U S history But in the last few years the population has decreased in some states by almost a third A broad consensus is emerging to reduce prison rolls Politicians have called for repealing the harshest sentencing laws of the war on drugs abolishing mandatory minimums and closing correctional facilities Does the decrease in the prison population herald the dismantling of mass incarceration This book provides an answer Drawing on original research from across New York State the contributors argue that while massive decarceration is taking place the outcome to date is not the one wished for by reformers namely a more just system While drug law reform is clearly upon us for example a moral panic about heroin addiction and phantom meth labs has recently reached a fever pitch As the penitentiary population drops and prisons close the number of people in jail has swelled New intelligence led policing and the rise of a reentry industry together have led to more surveillance and less social justice Together these developments lead to justice disinvestment as the state sheds direct responsibility for the criminal justice system to the private and non profit sector while it extends its reach through new forms of community based supervision surveillance and policing into poor neighborhoods and communities of color Celebration may be premature in other words Having endowed a group that is already disproportionately poor and people of color with the stigma of criminality the state has left the formerly incarcerated and their communities to their fate The future we face appears to be neither emancipatory reform nor simply the continuation of past mass incarceration The challenge of freedom on a scale not seen since the Reconstruction remains before us Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1995 United States.
