Representing Place Edward S. Casey, 2002-01-01 You are here a map declares but of course you are not any more than you truly occupy the vantage point into which a landscape painting puts you How maps and paintings figure and reconfigure space as well as our place in it is the subject of Edward S Casey s study an exploration of how we portray the world and its many places Casey s discussion ranges widely from Northern Sung landscape painting to nineteenth century American and British landscape painting and photography from prehistoric petroglyphs and medieval portolan charts to seventeenth century Dutch cartography and land survey maps of the American frontier From these culturally and historically diverse forays a theory of representation emerges Casey proposes that the representation of place in visual works be judged in terms not of resemblance but of reconnecting with an earth and world that are not the mere content of mind or language a reconnection that calls for the embodiment and implacement of the human subject Book jacket

"Back to the Rough Ground!" David Blair,2006-05-16 The more narrowly we examine language the sharper becomes the conflict between it and our requirement For the crystalline purity of logic was of course not a result of investigation it was a requirement The conflict becomes intolerable the requirement is now in danger of becoming empty We have got onto slippery ice where there is no friction and so in a certain sense the conditions are ideal but also just because of that we are unable to walk We want to walk so we need friction Back to the rough ground Ludwig Wittgenstein This manuscript consists of four related parts a brief overview of Wittgenstein's philosophy of language and its relevance to information systems a detailed explanation of Wittgenstein's late philosophy of language and mind an extended discussion of the relevance of his philosophy to understanding some of the problems inherent in information systems especially those systems which rely on retrieval based on some representation of the intellectual content of that information And fourthly a series of detailed footnotes which cite the sources of the numerous quotations and provide some discussion of the related issues that the text inspires The first three of these parts can each be read by itself with some profit although they are related and do form a conceptual whole

Beyond Borders Ashish Kumar,2023-10-30 This book examines the economic history of ancient South Asia by situating the Malwa region of Central India within Afro Eurasian trade networks to illuminate the role of traders in the political religious and economic processes connected with the Indo Sasanian trade in the period of five centuries circa CE 300 700 The book challenges the long held centrality of the Roman factor in the South Asian economy by locating the Indo Sasanian interactions in long distance economic networks with trade as a central feature It considers the role and influence of traders as an understudied group affecting the contribution of the Indian economy to the world system Amidst rapidly changing political landscapes traders of Indian and Sasanian origins are studied as conscious political beings who formed ties with varieties of polities and religious communities to secure their commercial interests In addition their commercial interactions with their Sogdian Central Asia and Aksumite East Africa counterparts are analyzed The book also considers the nature of trade routes and the specific connections between mercantile and religious networks including patterns of construction of religious shrines and temples along trade routes Integrating epigraphic numismatic literary and archaeological evidence this book moves away from a marginal treatment of the Indo Sasanian trade in Indian history and demonstrates how regional economic history must address a plurality of causes actors and processes in its assessment of the regional economy The book will be of interest to students and academics of Indian economic history as well as the ancient economies of South Asia more broadly
