Brown, 2014-08-30 Once the economic and social lifeblood of Canada the country's railways and heritage stations are a fading part of the patrimony of communities across the nation

How We Changed Toronto John Sewell, 2015-09-21

By the mid 1960s Toronto was well on its way to becoming Canada's largest and most powerful city One real estate firm aptly labelled it Boomtown Expressways subways shopping centres high rise apartments and skyscraping downtown office towers were transforming the city City officials were cheerleaders for unrestricted growth All this progress had a price Heritage buildings were disappearing Whole neighbourhoods were being destroyed by city hall itself in the name of urban renewal and high rise developers Many idealistic young Torontonians didn't like what they saw At a time when political activism was in the air they engaged in local politics Recently graduated lawyer John Sewell was one of many He joined his friends working for local residents in areas targeted for demolition by city hall Others were fighting the Spadina expressway planned to push its way through the city to the lakeshore Still others were saving Toronto's Old City Hall from demolition This was the modest start of a twelve year transformation of Toronto chronicled in John Sewell's new book Bringing together a fascinating cast of characters from cigar chomping developers to Jane Jacobs and David Crombie from a host of ordinary citizens to some of the world's most innovative architects and planners Sewell describes the conflict filled period when Toronto developed a whole new approach to city government civic engagement and planning policies Sewell went from activist organizer to high profile opposition politician to leading light of a bare reform majority at city hall to become Toronto's mayor Along the way he sparked the rethinking of an amazing array of old ideas not just about how cities should grow but about race relations attitudes toward the LGBT community and the role of police His defeat in the city's 1980 election marked the end of a decade of dramatic transformation but the changes this reform era produced are now entrenched in Toronto but in other Canadian cities too How We Changed Toronto is the inside story of activist idealists who set out to change the world and did right in their own backyard

The Shape of the City

John Sewell, 1993-12-15 Critics have long voiced concerns about the wisdom of living in cities and the effects of city life on physical and mental health For a century planners have tried to meet these issues John Sewell traces changes in urban planning from the pre Depression garden cities to postwar modernism and a revival of interest in the streetscape grid In this far ranging review Sewell recounts the arrival of modern city planning with its emphasis on lower densities limited access streets segregated uses and considerable green space He makes Toronto a case history with its pioneering suburban development in Don Mills and its other planned communities including Regent Park St Jamestown Thorncrest Village and Bramalea The heyday of the modern planning movement was in the 1940s to the 1960s and the Don Mills concept was repeated in spirit and in style across Canada Eventually strong public reaction brought modern planning almost to a halt within the city of Toronto The battles centred on saving the Old City Hall and stopping the Spadina Expressway Sewell concludes that although the modernist approach remains ascendant in the suburbs the City of Toronto has begun to replace it with alternatives that work This is a reflective but vigorous statement by a committed urban reformer Few Canadians are better suited to point the way towards city planning for the future

Women and Architectural History Dana Arnold, 2024-07-01 In this book prominent architectural historians who happen to be women reflect on their practice and the intervention this has made in the discipline Of particular concern are the ways in which feminine subjectivities have been embodied in the discourses of architectural history Each of the chapters examines the author's own position and the disruptive presence of women as both subject and object in the historiography of a specific field of enquiry The aim is not to replace male lives with female lives or to write women into the masculinist narratives of architectural history Instead this book aims to broaden the discourses of architectural history to explore how the potentially unnatural rule of women subverts canonical norms through the empowerment of otherness rather than a process of perceived emasculation The essays examine the historiographic and socio cultural implications of the role of women in the narratives and writing of architectural history with particular reference to Western traditions of scholarship on the period 1600-1950 Rather than subscribing to a single position individual voices critically engage with past and present canonical histories disclosing assumptions biases and absences in the architectural historiography of the West This book is a crucial reflection upon historiographical practice exploring potential openings that may contribute further transformation of the theory and methods of architectural history Chapter 9 of this book is freely available as a downloadable Open Access PDF at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution NonCommercial NoDerivatives CC BY NC ND 4.0 International license

The Tiny Perfect Mayor Jon Caulfield, 1974-01-01 When David Crombie won his surprise victory in the 1972 mayoralty race in Toronto everyone thought it was a victory for citizen activism and for a saner approach to urban development Was it This book examines Crombie's performance on a range of major issues housing highrises downtown development environmental matters Toronto Island subways and expressways Caulfield contends that despite the efforts of a cadre of committed reform oriented civic politicians Crombie's mayoralty largely buttressed the status quo and the old guard politicians he fought so hard to defeat in the first place The Tiny Perfect Mayor is a pointed critical examination of one of Canada's most prominent civic politicians of the 1970s

City Form and Everyday Life Jon Caulfield, 1994-01-01 Drawing on a series of in depth interviews among a segment of Toronto's inner city middle class population Caulfield argues that the seeds of gentrification have included patterns of critical social practice and that the gentrified landscape is highly paradoxical

The Best Gift Margaret Beckman, Stephen Langmead, John Black, 1984-01-01 This book is a vivid reminder of the early days of library development in Ontario The beautiful buildings which still grace Ontario towns and villages as illustrated are a part of our provincial heritage By the turn of the century a public library was perceived as an important element in the civic fabric of almost every Ontario community However the introduction of the Carnegie grants for library buildings gave impetus to the Ontario government programme for library development and provided a focus for increased support of library services Rivalry among neighbouring communities to secure a Carnegie library heightened this awareness as did the publicity in some instances even controversy which surrounded each step of the grant seeking site selection and plan approval process As well the hitherto unexplored story of Carnegie grant process in each community has been examined and the role of one man James Bertram secretary to Andrew Carnegie is revealed in absorbing detail Library plans and design elements are also discussed and the influence of a few architects on the building designs is revealed the fascinating involvement of Frank Lloyd Wright in the Pembroke Carnegie library building is one such example The Open Gate Richard Bebout,1972
