Open Shutters Poems:

Open Shutters Mary Jo Salter, 2013-11-13 Mary Jo Salter's sparkling new collection Open Shutters leads us into a world where things are often not what they seem. In the first poem Trompe l'Oeil the shadow casting shutters on Genoese houses are made of paint only an open lie. And yet Who needs to be correct more often than once a day Who needs real shadow more than play. Open Shutters also calls to mind the lens of a camera in the villanelle School Pictures or in the stirring sequence In the Guesthouse which inspired by photographs of a family across three generations offers at once a social history of America and a love story. Darkness and light interact throughout the book in poems about September 11 about a dog named Shadow about a blind centenarian who still pretends to read the paper about a woman shaken by the death of her therapist. A section of light verse highlights the wit and grace that have long distinguished Salter's most serious work. Fittingly the volume fools the eye once more by closing with An Open Book in which a Muslim family praying at a funeral seek consolation in the pages formed by their upturned palms. Open Shutters is the achievement of a remarkable poet whose concerns and stylistic range continue to grow encompassing ever larger themes becoming ever more open. Open Shutters Oliver Jenkins, 1922

With its intricate rhyme scheme and dance-like pattern of repeating lines, its marriage of recurrence and surprise the villanelle is a form that has fascinated poets since its introduction almost two centuries ago Many well known poets in the past have tried their hands at the villanelle and the form is enjoying a revival among poets writing today The poems collected here range from the classic villanelles of the nineteenth century to such famous and memorable examples as Dylan Thomas's Do not go gentle into that good night Elizabeth Bishop's One Art and Sylvia Plath's Mad Girl's Love Song Here too are the cutting edge works of contemporary poets including Sherman Alexie Lorna Dee Cervantes Rita Dove Seamus Heaney Paul Muldoon and many others whose poems demonstrate the dazzling variety that can be found within the parameters of a single strict form Poems Frederick Morgan,1987 A Study Guide for Mary Jo Salter's sit and savor the beauty and wisdom of winter around us and within Award winning writer Marilyn McEntyre invites us into winter when stars assume heightened significance and the ambient quiet of snowscapes or fogscapes or rainscapes stills us Winter is quieter than other seasons sometimes lonelier and it opens us to pay attention We may at first feel the ache of diminishment as days grow more silent but even as melancholy befits winter this season also bears its own fruit In the precarious waiting and unknowing we surrender to natural forces and rhythms our lives may be changed utterly as we grow deeper more patient more attentive to what s outside our doors in the night sky or hibernating deep within ourselves Perhaps now is the time to grab that cup of tea that warm mug of whatever brings you comfort and cheer and with each sip engage the wisdom of winter the poems the reflections to make the long season richer warmer As the author writes We live with less when the world grows cold and quiet but lessening is a lesson we can live with less We need the silences that allow us to hear small glass chimes And simple warmth can offer an occasion to be grateful for small things In poems and life affirming reflections on freedom growth quietude and keenly felt hope we learn to live in simple contentment Without being saccharine Midwinter Light guides us to seek and find what we need right where we are a read for all walks of life that we can turn to again and again when we need to recenter One Poem in Search of a Translator Eugenia Loffredo,Manuela

Perteghella,2009 Translation is a journey a journey undertaken by the text hopping around the world and mischievously border crossing from one language to another from one culture to another For a translator this journey can become a truly creative engagement with the otherness of the source text an experience of self discovery leading to understanding and enrichment and ultimately towards a new text This singular literary experiment intends to magnify the idiosyncrasy of this translational journey In the process translation reveals itself as an increasingly creative activity rather than simply a linguistic transfer This volume consists of twelve translations of one poem Les Fen tres by the French poet Apollinaire The translators embarking on this project all from different backgrounds and working contexts poets professional translators academics visual artists were asked to engage with the inherent multimodality of this poem inspired by Robert Delaunay s Les Fen tres series of paintings The result is a kaleidoscopic diversity of approaches and final products Each translation is accompanied by self reflective commentary which provides insight into the complex process and experience of translation enticing the reader to join this journey too The Reference Catalogue of Current Literature ,1910
