

Opening Speech

Honorable Chair, Esteemed Delegates, and Distinguished Guests,

Approximately 1 in 4 people worldwide will experience a mental health issue at some point in their lives. Suicide, often linked to underlying mental health conditions, is a significant concern. Each year, more than 800,000 people die by suicide, making it the second leading cause of death among individuals aged 15-29.

Greece thinks that mental health is not confined to the realm of the individual but is intricately interwoven with various aspects of our lives. It influences our productivity, shapes our economies, impacts education, and affects the overall social fabric of our societies. Greece has implemented suicide prevention programs, including a national suicide helpline (1018) and crisis intervention services. efforts have been made to raise public awareness about mental health and reduce stigma.

it's important to note that these problems are just not limited to greece but are a worldwide pheonema , while Greece has made progress in improving mental health services, there are ongoing challenges, including limited resources, regional disparities, and the need for further destigmatization

Greece highly values mental health and Therefore, it looks forward to discussing this and other issues in the following days. Thank you.
