Opium And Other Stories:

Opium and Other Stories Geza Csath,2022-12-13 A rediscovered classic of Hungarian literature this spellbinding collection vividly depicts the darkest impulses of the human psyche against the backdrop of Europe's moral and social decline on the eve of World War I. Geza Csath's pen name of Jozsef Brenner was a writer, playwright, musician, psychiatrist, and physician born in Hungary at the end of the 19th century. One of Sigmund Freud's earliest followers, he pushed both life and art to radical extremes in an all-consuming and ultimately fatal search for the unvarnished truth about the human condition. Written with unsparing clarity and reminiscent of the works of Frank Kafka and Edgar Allan Poe for their dark pessimism and gothic imagination, the short stories collected here pierce the veil of the seemingly tranquil ordinary lives of their protagonist. At times realistic, at times dreamlike, Csath's gruesome, harrowing tales reveal the violent and irrational forces lurking just beneath the surface of a society on the verge of the abyss. A memorable volume, Csath's depiction of the collapse of Central Europe by way of magnification of the collapse of the individual is uncannily prophetic. Joyce Carol Oates, The New Republic.

Opium and Other Stories Géza Csáth, Marianna D. Birnbaum, 1983. These controversial stories were written in Hungary during the early part of this century and show some of the same dispassionate pessimism as Kafka. Opium and Other Stories Csáth Géza, 1983. Fear and Other Stories Dalpat Chauhan, 2023-04-24. Chauhan's writing is resistance literature. It echoes the harrowing screams of a people long suppressed. Fear and Other Stories is a reminder of the inherent dangers of the Dalit life, a life subjected to unimaginable violence and terror even in its most mundane moments. In this collection of short stories, veteran Gujarati writer Dalpat Chauhan narrates these lived experiences of exasperation and anger with startling vividness. His characters chronicle a deep history of resistance, interrogating historical, mythological, and literary legends, foregrounding the perspectives of the disenfranchised. Chauhan deftly wields his prose to counter dominant narratives, pointing out gaps and voicing the silences within. In The Payback, for a change, we see famished savarnas begging Dalit families for food that they scorn otherwise. The eponymous Fear follows the heroic but doomed resistance of Dalit youths fighting against savarna men with the right to enter their homes and molest women inside. And the allegorical Cold Blood features a doctor who tries to leave behind his identity with his surname only to be reminded of it when the savarnas accept his blood but not water from his hands. Hemang Ashwinkumar's nimble translation introduces the English reader to Chauhan's heart-wrenching stories while unmasking a rural Gujarat unrecognizable from its supposedly vibrant idylls. His introduction to the book not just contextualises Chauhan's work but is also a touching and thought-provoking commentary on the larger canvas of Dalit literature. Amok and other Stories Stefan Zweig, 2007-02-20. A doctor in the Dutch East Indies torn between his medical duty to help and his own mixed emotions, a middle-aged maidservant whose devotion to her master leads her to commit a terrible act, a hotel waiter whose love for an unapproachable aristocratic beauty culminates in an almost lyrical death, and a prisoner of war longing to be home again in Russia. In these four stories, Stefan Zweig shows his
