Raising Voices Ensuring Quality In Residential Care:

Raising Voices P. J. Youll, C. McCourt-Perring, 1993 Raising Voices P. J. Youll, Christine McCourt Perring, 1993 A major programme of developmental research in residential care practice and management the Caring in Homes Initiative is described and evaluated in this book It raises a series of questions about residential care in the Nineties and highlights serious issues that will shape the provision of residential care in the future The authors evaluated the Initiative over a period of three and a half years visiting projects and interviewing residents staff and managers in homes across all care groups Their findings should be interesting reading for everybody who wishes to see residential care as a positive choice for all those who use it and for the staff who run the services Developing Quality in Personal Social Services Adalbert Evers, Riitta Haverinen, Kai Leichsenring, Gerald Wistow, 2019-05-23 First published in 1997 this volume is about the challenge of introducing business originated concepts of quality assurance personal social services are currently confronted with all over Europe Undoubtedly the new orientation towards a more business like approach in social welfare settings will raise professionalism client orientation and controlling instead of mere inspection There is evidence however that the specificities of personal social services are not always taken into account if it comes to introducing market values and mechanisms Due to this development it becomes essential to promote more adequate criteria for quality standards in the very field of personal social services The challenge is to maintain a certain standard of service provision while at the same time reconsidering the preconditions for defining quality This will imply the search for a consensus between allegedly diverging approaches i e between their different basic concepts aims and standards Given the social and economic context within which these developments are taking place the focus of the contributions is on their critical assessment in different European countries An overview is given about national developments in the areas of care for older persons and other social services The contributors from Austria Belgium Denmark Finland Germany Italy the Netherlands Norway Sweden and the UK look at how and by whom quality is defined and what challenges the actors of the traditionally mixed economy of personal social services are meeting Empirical evidence about user involvement and satisfaction is given but also theoretical reasoning about the impact of business approaches on a public good Thus the book tries to fill an important gap in practice research and policy making concerning personal social services and quality issues Residential versus Community Care Raymond Jack, 2016-01-06 The role of residential care in welfare provision has been debated for many years Recent emphasis on care in the community has led to closure of hospitals and residential homes on a massive scale Drawing together contributions from some key names in the field this provocative and stimulating book questions the reasons for the rejection of this form of care and offers a reassessment of its role in community care for the twenty first century Ageing and disability: Transitions into residential care The Open University, This 11 hour free course explored the role of social workers and care staff in supporting individuals who move into residential care Quality care for elderly people Edward J.

Dickinson, Peter P. Mayer, Martin Sandler, 2013-11-11 This book is all about improving the health care of elderly people which is facing unprecedented challenges in the 1990s. Energies need to be concentrated in three main areas: the development of high quality care in community settings, the future role of specialized hospital services, and the way that long term care is delivered. All of these are interconnected and success with any of them depends on successful relationships. For example, success in community care requires working interfaces with primary care, the private sector, and hospital care. These interfaces are not static but comprise dynamic interactions between people in different teams with different backgrounds, training, perspectives, and interests. What people do is influenced strongly by the organizations they work for. These inescapable facts lead us to the structure of this book. By concentrating on sectors, people, and organizations, we hope to deal with all the important relationships in a coherent way. Yet this book is not intended to be from a service providers' perspective. We have arranged the book in this way so that providers are best equipped to meet the needs of their customers, whether they are patients, residents, or clients. We know that elderly people may experience dislocation in their care because of frictions and gaps between different sectors, disciplines, teams, and organizations. To achieve seamless care, there is a need for greater understanding and harmony of purpose and action across the care spectrum. Towards Quality Care

Caroline Mozley, Caroline Sutcliffe, Heather Bagley, Lis Cordingley, David Challis, Peter Huxley, Alistair Burns, 2017-11-22 This unique evaluation of the outcomes of residential and nursing home care for older people identifies the factors determining the quality of life of older people who have moved into care homes. It examines the relationship between older people's psychological well-being and the kinds of care received in residential homes. The volume draws on a study of UK care homes interviewing new entrants soon after admission and then on two further occasions to ascertain their experience of care and their quality of life. Interviews were also undertaken with care staff and their managers, and the care environment of each home was assessed. The authors provide valuable evidence of the factors which can influence older people's well-being on entering a care home and how they adjust, either positively or not, to their new surroundings. The volume offers clear pointers towards ways to improve quality of residential and nursing home care. Understanding Old Age

Gail Wilson, 2000-02-22 Providing a comprehensive overview of issues of ageing from a global perspective, this ambitious text introduces the reader to a wide range of issues and policies on ageing. Topics examined include theoretical perspectives on ageing in society, demographic trends, roles played by older people as political actors, migration, health, pensions, family, and institutional care, and elder abuse. This will be an essential text for students of social gerontology as well as an invaluable resource for students of nursing, social work, social policy, and development studies. Towards More Democracy in Social Services
