Shepherd,1991 By the year 2001 it is forecast that around 11% of England is likely to be in urban use Almost a third of this expected urban growth will be concentrated in the South East Up until now the factual basis for assertions such as these has been extremely weak Town and Country Planning in the UK Barry Cullingworth,Vincent Nadin,2006-10-16 This revised fourteenth edition reinforces this title s reputation as the bible of British planning It provides a through explanation of planning processes including the institutions involved tools systems policies and changes to land use Town and Country Planning in the UK J. B. Cullingworth,Vincent Nadin,2002 Town and Country Planning in the UK has become the bible of British planning It provides an explanation of the nature of planning the institutions and organisations involved the plans and other tools used by planners planning policies and more Greenfields, Brownfields and Housing Development David Adams,Craig Watkins,2008-04-15 The location of new housing development has become one of the most intractable controversies of modern times This book provides a powerful critique of the growing tendency to reduce the debate on the development of new housing to a mere choice between greenfield and brownfield locations It calls for full account to be taken of such factors as the structure and organisation of the housebuilding industry supply and demand pressures in the housing market the contested nature of sustainability and the political character of the planning process if a truly effective housing land policy is to be devised Drawing on theories from economics and political science this book will provide an important reference point on the institutional context within which residential development takes place and on the concerns of planning authorities environmentalists housebuilders and their customers in relation to the apparent choice between greenfield and brownfield development Planning At The Crossroads James Simmie,2003-09-02 Through a detailed analysis of studies of the effects of planning comparing low levels of urban containment in California with much higher levels in the UK Some comparative insights are also drawn from the pre conflict Yugoslavian planning system The analysis shows that many of the serious criticisms of planning are valid and leads to the conclusion that some sacred cows notably green belts should be abandoned This distinctive text is of use to students researchers and professionals in planning geography and urban studies The Compact City Elizabeth Burton,Mike Jenks,Katie Williams,2003-09-02 This book presents the latest thinking on the benefits and dangers of higher density urban living It offers diverse opinions and research from a wide range of disciplines and gives an insight into both the theoretical debate and the practical challenges surrounding the compact city Essential reading for anyone with an interest in sustainable urban development Urban Landscapes J. W. R. Whitehand,Peter J. Larkham,1992 Taking a multidisciplinary approach this addresses the academic and practical issues concerning the present and future of the built environment arguing for its enlightened management in the future of our present day environment Planning, the Market and Private

Housebuilding Glen Bramley, Will Bartlett, Christine Lambert, 1995 Planning the market and private housebuilding is a timely new book which analyzes key contemporary issues in the light of the latest research findings and trends in policy and practice The relationship between land use planning and the housebuilding industry in Britain has long been characterized by intense debate and conflicting priorities about land supply The experience of the late 1980s and the early 1990s has made national policy makers and economic analysts aware of the crucial importance of the housing market for the whole economy and has once more put planning in the spotlight At the same time planning itself is undergoing significant changes and has been given a new mission in terms of the environmental agenda which may be in some tension with the needs of the housing economy The artificial boundaries between housing and planning have also been broken down by recent developments linking planning and social housing and stressing the enabling role of housing authorities The authors are based in leading research and teaching centres for planning and housing and they combine expertise in housing policy and finance industrial economics and organization and town The book grapples directly with some of the biggest issues How sluggish is the housebuilding industry in responding to demand How much does planning affect house prices What would happen if we scrapped the Green Belt Do planning policies get implemented Do planning agreements for affordable housing make sense What would happen if mortgage interest tax relief were abolished The book is aimed at interested lay readers those involved professionally in the housing development and planning fields and at students of planning construction housing geography economics social policy and related disciplines While centred on the experience of the UK the authors bring to bear their knowledge of comparative experience and research in a range of other countries including North America and Europe Glen Bramley a specialist on housing and public finance is a Reader in the School for Advanced Urban Studies SAUS at the University of Bristol he was Deputy Director of SAUS for 1990-92 Will Bartlett is a Research Fellow at SAUS having lectured in economics at the universities of Southampton Bristol and Bath Christine Lambert is a Senior Lecturer in the School of Town and Country Planning at the University of the West of England Bristol and she specializes on planning and local government issues
