Here's Looking at You Ernest D. Giglio, 2010 Now in its third edition Here's Looking at You Hollywood Film and Politics examines the tangled relationship between politics and Hollywood which manifests itself in celebrity involvement in political campaigns and elections and in the overt and covert political messages conveyed by Hollywood films The book's findings contradict the film industry's assertion that it is simply in the entertainment business and examines how while the majority of Hollywood films are strictly commercial ventures hundreds of movies ranging from Birth of a Nation to Capitalism do indeed contain political messages This new edition has been updated with new photos and cartoons and includes two new chapters

one on Afghan Iraqi war films and the other on the treatment of race and gender in Hollywood films that are sure to stimulate discussion Here s Looking at You serves as a basic text for political film courses and as a supplement in American government and film studies courses and will also appeal to film buffs and people in the film industry Small Press ,1986

Reel Black Talk Linda Allen, Spencer Moon, 1997-09-23 As evidenced in interviews included in this volume many African American filmmakers consider themselves artists first their ethnicity being only part of what influences their work This is the first book by an African American on contemporary African American filmmakers Here directors and producers speak for themselves posing challenges to current thinking in the field Special emphasis is given to the filmmakers' productions and their experiences Essays on historic figures reveal the rich history of the African American contribution to cinema From Oscar Micheaux and Spencer Williams to Neema Barnett and the team of George Jackson and Doug McHenry this revealing reference work will enlighten scholars students and film buffs As early as 1899 African Americans were involved in the filmmaking industry Oscar Micheaux took directing writing and producing to a higher level with the release of his first film in 1918 by 1948 he had made more than forty films Currently by international world cinema standards the African American tradition rivals cinema from anywhere in the world but these filmmakers face a quandary whether to make films through the Hollywood system or follow an independent vision

This book presents a cross section of filmmakers from each camp and also focuses on those who work in both arenas
