Technocapitalism Luis Suarez-Villa, 2012-08-03 A new version of capitalism grounded in technology and science is spawning new forms of corporate power and organization that will have major implications for the twenty first century Technological creativity is thereby turned into a commodity in new corporate regimes that are primarily oriented toward research and intellectual appropriation This phenomenon is likely to have major social economic and political consequences as the new corporatism becomes ever more intrusive and rapacious through its control over technology and innovation In his provocative book Technocapitalism Luis Suarez Villa addresses this phenomenon from the perspective of radical political economy and social criticism Grounded in the premise that relations of power influence how human creativity and technology are exploited by the new corporatism the author argues that new forms of democratic participation and resistance are needed if the social pathologies created by this new version of capitalism are to be checked Considering the new sectors affected by technocapitalism such as biotechnology nanotechnology bioinformatics and genomics Suarez Villa deciphers the common threads of power and organization that drive their corporatization These new sectors and the corporate apparatus set up to extract profit and power through them are imposing standards creating business models molding social governance and influencing social relations at all levels The new reality they create is likely to affect most every aspect of human existence including work health life and nature itself

Knowledge, Complexity and Innovation Systems Manfred M. Fischer,Josef Fröhlich,2013-11-27 In recent years there has been growing scientific interest in the triangular relationship between knowledge complexity and innovation systems The concept of innovation systems carries the idea that innovations do not originate as isolated discrete phenomena but are generated through the interaction of a number of actors or agents This set of actors and interactions possess certain specific characteristics that tend to remain over time Such characteristics are also shared by national regional sectoral and technological interaction systems They can all be represented as sets of institutional actors and interactions whose ultimate goal is the production and diffusion of knowledge The major theoretical and policy problem posed by these systems is that knowledge is generated not only by individuals and organisations but also by the often complex pattern of interaction between them To understand how organisations create new products new production techniques and new organisational forms is important An even more fundamental need is to understand how organisations create new knowledge if this knowledge creation lies in the mobilisation and conversion of tacit knowledge Although much has been written about the importance of knowledge in management little attention has been paid to how knowledge is created and how the knowledge creation process is managed The third component of the research triangle concerns complexity American Higher Education in a Global Context Cristina González, 2022-02-14 American Higher Education in a Global Context Historical Perspectives describes the current state of universities on each continent providing a comprehensive analysis of the numerous factors that have affected higher education systems around the world This book studies higher education from its emergence in antiquity to the establishment of the American research university model and its adoption around the globe through the current Covid 19 pandemic and concomitant economic and political crisis The author pays special attention to the shortcomings of the neoliberal trend of the last four decades which increased social stratification at institutions of higher learning Calling for an expansion of access to tertiary education and in particular to research universities this book examines the competition between China and the United States in the field of higher education stressing the importance of academic freedom without which there can be no true academic excellence Journal of International Students, 2015 Vol. 5(3) Krishna Bista, 2019-10-01 The Journal of International Students JIS an academic interdisciplinary and peer reviewed publication Print ISSN 2162 3104 Online ISSN 2166 3750 publishes narrative theoretical and empirically based research articles student and faculty reflections study abroad experiences and book reviews relevant to international students and their cross cultural experiences and understanding in international education
