Interpretive Techniques for Microstructural Analysis J. McCall, 2012-12-06 In recent years microstructural analysis has been a rapidly changing field of scientific endeavor No longer are the efforts of the microstructural analysts sometimes referred to as metallographers materiallographers ceramographers and similar designations limited to the tasks of polishing etching and photographing specimens of materials The performance demanded of materials used for many current applications requires much more complete characterizations than were possible only a scant few years ago Although the individuals who have been expected to develop new and improved techniques to permit these required characterizations have been severely challenged in large part they have met the challenge In view of the many new developments in the field of microstructural analysis and recognizing the requirements to communicate these developments to the wide audience that might make use of them the American Society for Metals and the International Metallographic Society joined forces to co sponsor a symposium that was intended to bring participants and attendees up to date on the subject Interpretive Techniques for Microstructural Analysis This symposium was held in Minneapolis Minnesota USA June 29 and 30 1975 It followed two earlier symposia co sponsored by the same two societies on other subjects of current interest to the metallographic community Microstructural Analysis Tools and Techniques 1972 and Metallographic Specimen Preparation Optical and Electron Microscopy 1973
