Physical Geology Of The Don Basin:

The Physical Geology of the Don Basin Alexander Bremner, 1921 The Physical Geology of the Don Basin Alex Bremner, 2015-06-25 Excerpt from The Physical Geology of the Don Basin This volume was completed and the MS left the writer's hands during the Spring of 1914 Though it contains no statement he wishes to withdraw there are many points on which further study has shed new light and on which fuller information could now be given The theory of river terracing for example should be amplified so as to bring out the importance of conditions determining the formation of river islands and their incorporation in the flood plain Along Dee and Don every terrace now or once part of a flood plain of any extent is traversed by a larger or smaller number of anastomosing hollows plainly former channels of the river or of branches of it and terraces of all types but particularly ordinary Lateral Terraces p 84 have been extended by the accretion of island to flood plain through the desertion and subsequent obliteration by flood loam plant growth etc of secondary channels In the vast majority of instances this has not been brought about by the severing of spurs p 96 as Prof Davis seems to imply has been the case along New England rivers The list of glacial striae too could now be greatly extended About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works and in the neighbourhood of Kildrummy it crosses Middle Old Red Sandstone a short distance from the sea it again encounters what is presumably the same formation This considered along with the occurrence of other Old Red outliers large and small in Aberdeenshire and Banffshire from the coast as far inland as Tomin toul suggests that at least from Towie to the sea the Don began its work on a platform of Middle Old Red and perhaps later deposits About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
