Trojan-Horse Aid Susan Walsh, 2014-11-01 In a compelling first hand account of development assistance gone awry Susan Walsh recounts how national international and multilateral organizations failed the Jalq'a people in the Bolivian Andes during the early millennium Intent on assisting potato farmers development organizations pushed for changes that ultimately served their own interests paradoxically undermining local resilience and pushing farmers off their lands Trojan Horse Aid challenges the idea of Western capacity building particularly the notion that introduced technologies related to food production are essential ingredients for sustainable livelihoods among farmers Walsh argues that the well intentioned organizations working in Jalq'a communities paid insufficient attention to longstanding knowledge that has supported human survival in regions where the natural world has the upper hand Walsh goes beyond a critical review of misguided aid to offer reflections on the relationship between indigenous knowledge and resilience theory the hopeful future of development assistance and the contradictions in her own hybrid role as researcher and development practitioner In light of growing global concern over the worsening food crisis and interconnected climate extremes Trojan Horse Aid offers an important critique of development practices that undermine peasant strategies as well as suggestions for more effective approaches for the future

Ecology of Practice A. Endre Nyerges, 2016-01-20 First Published in 1998 The study of the origin development and diversity of the human diet is emerging as a coherent field that offers a much needed integrative framework for our contemporary knowledge of the ecology of food and nutrition This authoritative series of monographs and symposia volumes on the history and anthropology of food and nutrition is designed to address this need by providing integrative approaches to the study of various problems within the human food chain. As a series, it offers many unique opportunities for a wide range of scientists, scholars, and other professionals representing anthropology, archaeology, food history, economics, agriculture, folklore, nutrition, medicine, pharmacology, public health, and public policy to exchange important new knowledge, discoveries, and methods involved in the study of all aspects of human food ways.

Organizing Innovation Marcel Veenswijk, 2006
New Public Management as an administrative reform ideology as well as conceptual innovation has changed the outlook of public administration during the last ten years. Public administration and public administration reform should not only be concerned with the improvement of the efficiency and coherence which play an important role in public administration but also political values like liberty, equity, and security as well as legal values like the rule of the law. The modernization agenda of public administration has a rather internal focus while the ultimate test for the modernization of public administration is the way in which governments are able to respond to changing social, cultural, and economic conditions and the wicked policy problems which result from them. This publication contains interesting contributions to the science and practice of public administration.

AIDS, Behavior, and Culture Edward C. Green, Allison Herling Ruark, 2016-06-16
Arguing for a behavior-based approach, Green and Ruark make the case that the most effective AIDS programs are those that encourage fundamental behavioral changes such as abstinence, delay of sex, faithfulness, and cessation of injection drug use.

Imagining Transgender David Valentine, 2007-08-30
An ethnography in which the author's fieldwork with transgendered and transsexual individuals in New York City demonstrates the creation and confusion of gender identity labels.

Globalization and Transformations of Social Inequality Ulrike Schuerkens, 2010-06-10
Offers analytical and comparative insights from case studies of social inequality in eleven countries within the major regions of the world.

Anthropological Practice Judith Okely, 2020-05-15
Anthropologists are increasingly pressurised to formulate field methods for teaching. Unlike many hypothesis-driven ethnographic texts, this book is designed with the specific needs of the anthropology student and field researcher in mind, with particular emphasis on the core anthropological method: long-term participant observation. Anthropological Practice explores fieldwork experiences unique to anthropology and provides the context by which to explain and develop practice-based and open-ended methodology. It draws on dialogues with over twenty established and younger anthropologists whose fieldwork spans the late 1960s to the present day, taking place in locations as diverse as Europe, India, Malaysia, Indonesia, Africa, Iran, Afghanistan, North and South America. Revealing first-hand and hitherto unrecorded aspects of fieldwork, Anthropological Practice provides critical, systematic ways to enhance anthropological and alternative knowledge. It is an essential text for anthropology students and researchers and for all disciplines concerned with ethnography.
