Practising Development Social Science Perspectives:

Practising Development Johan Pottier, 2013-02-01 Throughout the 1980s there have been calls often from development organizations of global repute for the incorporation of social science perspectives into the design and management of sustainable development programmes Practising Development is the first collection to offer first hand critical assessments of the success and failures found within actual responses to these calls By combining academic and practical experience from anthropology development and aid organizations the contributors examine the processes of intervention the methods by which this intervention can be assessed and explain the socio economic and political worlds within which intervention and development evolve

Rethinking Greenland and the Arctic in the Era of Climate Change Frank Sejersen, 2015-06-05 This ground breaking book investigates how Arctic indigenous communities deal with the challenges of climate change and how they strive to develop self determination Adopting an anthropological focus on Greenland's vision to boost extractive industries and transform society the book examines how indigenous communities engage with climate change and development discourses It applies a critical and comparative approach integrating both local perspectives and adaptation research from Canada and Greenland to make the case for recasting the way the Arctic and Inuit are approached conceptually and politically The emphasis on indigenous peoples as future makers and right holders paves the way for a new understanding of the concept of indigenous knowledge and a more sensitive appreciation of predicaments and dynamics in the Arctic This book will be of interest to post graduate students and researchers in environmental studies development studies and area studies

A Clash of Paradigms: Response and Development in the South Pacific Suan Maiava, 2024-11-01 This title was first published in 2001 This study indicates that researchers have far to go in understanding and assessing how development projects work The author shows that often the perception of failure is not shared by those whom were intended to benefit She uses a case study of Samoan villagers introduced to cattle farming to examine the wider development process and challenge the conventional theories By drawing on people centred perspectives that give much greater weight to the role of culture in development the volume does not simply criticize development project management but suggests practical and positive ways forward encouraging spontaneous indigenous development which should be supported by projects where appropriate

Negotiating Local Knowledge Johan Pottier, Alan Bicker, Paul Sillitoe, 2003-04-20 This is an original approach to debates about indigenous knowledge Concentrating on the political economy of knowledge construction and dissemination they look at the variety of ways in which development policies are received and constructed to reveal the ways in which local knowledge are appropriated and recast either by local elites or by development agencies Until now debates about indigenous knowledge have largely been conducted in terms of agricultural and environmental issues such as bio piracy and gene patenting This collection breaks new ground by opening up the theoretical debate to include areas such as post war traumatic stress counselling representations of nuclear capability architecture mining and the politics of eco tourism Psychological Research John Haworth,2006-04-14 Starting a research project however large or small can be a daunting prospect New researchers can be confronted with a huge number of options not only of topic but of conceptual underpinning It is quite possible to conduct research into say memory from a number of research traditions Psychology also has links with several other disciplines and it is possible to utilise their techniques the difficulty is quite simply the wide variety of methodological approaches that psychological research embraces In this collection authors have been recruited to explain a wide range of different research strategies and theories with examples from their own work Their successes as well as the problems they encountered are explained to provide a comprehensive and practical guide for all new researchers The collection will be a great help to undergraduates about to start final year projects and should be required reading for all those thinking of graduate level research Developments Erica Burman,2008-02-19 How does developmental psychology connect with the developing world What do cultural representations tell us about the contemporary politics of childhood What is the political economy of childhood This companion volume to Burman s Deconstructing Developmental Psychology helps us to explain why questions around children and childhood their safety their sexuality their interests and abilities their violence have so preoccupied the late twentieth and twenty first centuries In this increasingly post industrial post colonial and multicultural world this book identifies analytical and practical strategies for improving how we think about and work with children Drawing in particular on feminist and postdevelopment literatures the book illustrates how and why reconceptualising our notions of individual and human development including those informing models of children s rights and interests will foster more just and equitable forms of professional practice with children and their families The book brings together completely new previously unpublished material alongside revised and updated papers to present a cutting edge and integrated perspective to the field Burman offers a key contribution to a set of urgent debates engaging theory and method policy and practice across all the disciplines that work with or lay claim to children s interests Developments presents a coherent and persuasive set of arguments about childhood culture and professional practice so that the sustained focus across a range of disciplinary arenas psychology education cultural studies child rights gender studies development policy and practice social policy strengthens the overall argument of each chapter It will be invaluable to teachers and students in psychology childhood studies and education as well as researchers in gender studies It will also be a must read for professionals working with children and adolescents Livelihoods and Landscapes Paul Hebinck,Peter Lent,2007-07-30 Drawing on original data secondary literature aerial photographs and archives this book analyzes changes in the use of the landscape and the nature of rural livelihoods in two South African villages Taking an interdisciplinary approach on how livelihoods and landscapes in the Eastern Cape link the text provides a comprehensive study of the patterns of land use over time Three separate chapters focus on cropping and cultivation practices livestock and foraging as well as the gathering of wild plants The book gives a vivid picture of the social dynamics and the interaction between urban and rural It depicts the steady deterioration in agricultural production and the corresponding increase in dependence on social grants and wages Despite this trend remnants of a peasantry do exist Shifting Cultivation and Environmental Change Malcolm F. Cairns, 2015-01-09

Shifting cultivation is one of the oldest forms of subsistence agriculture and is still practised by millions of poor people in the tropics Typically it involves clearing land often forest for the growing of crops for a few years and then moving on to new sites leaving the earlier ground fallow to regain its soil fertility This book brings together the best of science and farmer experimentation vividly illustrating the enormous diversity of shifting cultivation systems as well as the power of human ingenuity Some critics have tended to disparage shifting cultivation sometimes called swidden cultivation or slash and burn agriculture as unsustainable due to its supposed role in deforestation and land degradation However the book shows that such indigenous practices as they have evolved over time can be highly adaptive to land and ecology In contrast scientific agricultural solutions imposed from outside can be far more damaging to the environment and local communities The book focuses on successful agricultural strategies of upland farmers particularly in south and south east Asia and presents over 50 contributions by scholars from around the world and from various disciplines including agricultural economics ecology and anthropology It is a sequel to the much praised Voices from the Forest Integrating Indigenous Knowledge into Sustainable Upland Farming RFF Press 2007 but all chapters are completely new and there is a greater emphasis on the contemporary challenges of climate change and biodiversity conservation Youth Homelessness Susan Hutson, Mark Liddiard, 1994-08-24 Drawing on a broad range of international studies this book looks in detail at how youth homelessness is variously defined measured and explained as well as discussing the solutions which are usually proposed for it Yet this book is more than simply a description of youth homelessness It uses original material to show how youth homelessness like other issues can be differently presented by agencies the media academics politicians and by those directly affected in this case young homeless people themselves Landscape, Process and Power Serena Heckler, 2012 In recent years the field of study variously called local indigenous or traditional environmental knowledge TEK has experienced a crisis brought about by the questioning of some of its basic assumptions This has included reassessing notions that scientific methods can accurately elicit and describe TEK or that incorporating it into development projects will improve the physical social or economic well being of marginalized peoples The contributors to this volume argue that to accurately and appropriately describe TEK the historical and political forces that have shaped it as well as people's day to day engagement with the landscape around them must be taken into account TEK thus emerges not as an easily translatable tool for development experts but as a rich and complex element of contemporary lives that should be defined and managed by indigenous and local peoples themselves What Anthropologists Do Veronica Strang, 2020-06-24 What is Anthropology Why should you study it What will you learn And what can you do with it What Anthropologists Do answers all these questions And more

Anthropology is an astonishingly diverse and engaged subject that seeks to understand human social behaviour What Anthropologists Do presents a lively introduction to the ways in which anthropology's unique research methods and cutting edge thinking contribute to a very wide range of fields environmental issues aid and development advocacy human rights social policy the creative arts museums health education crime communications technology design marketing and business In short a training in Anthropology provides highly transferable skills of investigation and analysis The book will be ideal for any readers who want to know what Anthropology is all about and especially for students coming to the study of Anthropology for the first time

Development Anthropology Riall W Nolan, 2018-02-06 Students will really appreciate this book It has a rare combination of humor clarity exceptional writing and above all a precision in outlining skills and knowledge for practice As a professional I learned much that will be useful to me Alexander M Ervin University of Saskatchewan At last a textbook on development anthropology that is comprehensive clearly written and up to date Nolan provides an exceptionally useful framework for analyzing development projects carefully illustrated with mini case studies Linda Stone Washington State University Nolan's book should be a backpack staple for the practitioner of grassroots development Jan Knippers Black Monterey Institute of International Studies Development Anthropology is a detailed examination of anthropology's many uses in international development projects Written from a practitioner's standpoint and containing numerous examples and case studies the book provides students with a comprehensive overview of what development anthropologists do how they do it and what problems they encounter in their work The book outlines the evolution of both applied anthropology and international development and their involvement with each other throughout the latter half of the twentieth century It focuses on how development projects work and how anthropology is used in project design implementation and evaluation The final section of the book considers how both development and anthropology must change in order to become more effective An appendix provides practical advice to students considering a career in development anthropology

Leprosy and a Life in South India James Staples, 2014-06-05 Drawing on solid ethnographic fieldwork as well as many hours of interviews Leprosy and a Life in South India Journeys with a Tamil Brahmin tells the life story of Das a Tamil Brahmin born in the newly post colonial India of the early 1950s After being diagnosed with leprosy Das spent over a decade on the streets of Bombay and Madras learning to survive as an unofficial station porter hotel bellhop and sometimes tourist guide He won and lost fortunes on horses he gambled and he learned firsthand of the pleasures to be had in Bombay's red light district But for all the joy that comes through so vividly in his account Das's story unfolds against a backdrop of everyday violence and hardship Re investigated through the prism of an individual life what are often presented as the rigid social categories of caste religion and kinship come to be seen in fresh new ways Through this life history account Leprosy in South India captures all this in ways conventional accounts do not offering a unique take on what it is to be an Indian in contemporary India
