Search For A Method:

Search for a Method Jean-Paul Sartre, 1963 From one of the 20th century's most profound philosophers and writers comes a thought provoking essay that seeks to reconcile Marxism with existentialism Exploring the complicated relationship the two philosophical schools of thought have with one another Sartre supposes that the two are in fact compatible and complimentary towards one another with poignant analysis and reasoning An important work of modern philosophy Search for a Method has a major influence on the current perceptions of existentialism and Marxism This is the most important philosophical work by Sartre to be translated since Being and Nothingness James Collings America     Optimization by the Pattern Search Method Ralph F. Green, 1970 An infinite number of mathematical models can be created to describe naturally occurring physical systems In addition there is a smaller but large number of criteria which can be used to measure the goodness of fit of a model to a physical process Together a selected criterion and a mathematical model define an objective function to be optimized     A Derivative-free Two Level Random Search Method for Unconstrained Optimization

Neculai Andrei, 2021-03-31 The book is intended for graduate students and researchers in mathematics computer science and operational research The book presents a new derivative free optimization method algorithm based on randomly generated trial points in specified domains and where the best ones are selected at each iteration by using a number of rules This method is different from many other well established methods presented in the literature and proves to be competitive for solving many unconstrained optimization problems with different structures and complexities with a relative large number of variables Intensive numerical experiments with 140 unconstrained optimization problems with up to 500 variables have shown that this approach is efficient and robust Structured into 4 chapters Chapter 1 is introductory Chapter 2 is dedicated to presenting a two level derivative free random search method for unconstrained optimization It is assumed that the minimizing function is continuous lower bounded and its minimum value is known Chapter 3 proves the convergence of the algorithm In Chapter 4 the numerical performances of the algorithm are shown for solving 140 unconstrained optimization problems out of which 16 are real applications This shows that the optimization process has two phases the reduction phase and the stalling one Finally the performances of the algorithm for solving a number of 30 large scale unconstrained optimization problems up to 500 variables are presented These numerical results show that this approach based on the two level random search method for unconstrained optimization is able to solve a large diversity of problems with different structures and complexities There are a number of open problems which refer to the following aspects the selection of the number of trial or the number of the local trial points the selection of the bounds of the domains where the trial points and the local trial points are randomly generated and a criterion for initiating the line search     Re-Search Methods in Social Work Kimberly A. #### Index and Query Methods in Road Networks Jun Feng, Toyohide

Watanabe, 2014-09-02 This book presents the index and query techniques on road network and moving objects which are limited to road network Here the road network of non Euclidean space has its unique characteristics such that two moving objects may be very close in a straight line distance The index used in two dimensional Euclidean space is not always appropriate for moving objects on road network Therefore the index structure needs to be improved in order to obtain suitable indexing methods explore the shortest path and acquire nearest neighbor query and aggregation query methods under the new index structures Chapter 1 of this book introduces the present situation of intelligent traffic and index in road network Chapter 2 introduces the relevant existing spatial indexing methods Chapter 3 5 focus on several issues of road network and query they involve traffic road network models see Chapter 3 index structures see Chapter 4 and aggregate query methods see Chapter 5 Finally in Chapter 6 the book briefly describes the applications and the development of intelligent transportation in the future
