Listening in the Silence, Seeing in the Dark Ruthann Knechel Johansen, 2002-03-22 Personal account of the author's 15 year old son who survived massive trauma to the brain following a car crash

Theophile Gautier, Orator to the Artists James Kearns, 2017-12-02 Theophile Gautier a envoye avec un feuilleton plus de trois mille personnes dans l'atelier de M Ingres wrote Champfleury in 1848 For artists critics and readers alike Gautier was the essential figure in French art journalism in the mid nineteenth century During the short lived but pivotal period of the Second Republic when the new administration was committed to reforming all the institutions of the fine arts Gautier deployed the full resources of his brilliant flexible and authoritative writing to support and direct these developments in ways compatible with his commitment to an idealist aesthetic itself under growing pressure from alternative trends in an increasingly competitive art market This first study of all Gautier's art journalism written during the Second Republic provides a long overdue reassessment of Gautier's importance in French nineteenth century visual culture

Journalism and the Periodical Press in Nineteenth-Century Britain Joanne Shattock, 2017-03-16 A comprehensive and authoritative overview of the diversity range and impact of the newspaper and periodical press in nineteenth century Britain

Marx and Engels on Imperialism Spencer A. Leonard, 2023-03-14 For a little over a decade after the ignominious collapse of the Revolution of 1848 Karl Marx worked as a professional journalist Writing from London for newspapers in America and eventually on the Continent he continued while living in exile the analysis of the crisis of revolution that he first began in direct engagement with revolutionary events most notably in The Class Struggles in France of 1850 and The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Bonaparte of 1852 In what became a vast body of material through this journalistic work Marx elaborated the critical concept of bonapartism first abumbrated in the latter book Continuing his effort to learn the lesson of 1848 Marx concentrated on the crisis of modern society and the new mass democratic state that emerged in the absence of the dictatorship of the proletariat to meet that crisis Together with Marx and Engels on Imperialism this is the first book to select and bring together Marx's journalism around a conceptual theme rather than a mere topic Whatever the subject the emergence of a new capitalist politics or the new unionism in Britain post 1848 Chartism the East India Company European nationalisms or the Taiping Rebellion in China Marx and Engels journalism is shown to constellate around bonapartism a concept that Marx critically appropriated from liberals distressed at the post 1848 order

Model Women of the Press Teja Varma Pusapati, 2024-02-28 This book offers the first extended account of the mid century rise of model women of the press women who not only stormed the male bastions of social and political journalism but also presented themselves as upholders of the highest standards of professional journalistic practice They broke the codes of anonymity in several ways including signing articles in their own names and developing distinctly female personae They proved by example women's fitness for conventionally masculine lines of journalism By placing Victorian women's serious high minded journalism firmly within the context of the widening sphere of female professions in mid nineteenth century England the book shows how a wide range of women writers including leading Victorian feminists and female reformers contributed to the professionalization of women's authorship Drawing on extensive archival research and close analysis of a wide range of printed texts from Victorian newspapers and periodicals to autobiographies memoirs and fiction this book elucidates several aspects of Victorian women's journalism that have been previously ignored the market interest of the feminist English Woman's Journal the ability of women like Eliza Meteyard and Frances Power Cobbe to write consistently on serious social and political issues in mainstream periodicals Harriet Ward's astonishing reportage from the war fields of South Africa and Harriet Martineau's reports on Famine devastated Ireland and her role as a transatlantic commentator on American abolitionism The study also offers the first focused account of the figure of the female professional journalist in Victorian novels showing how these texts move away from the dominant myth of the author as a solitary genius to present the female journalist as a collaborator who adapts her writing to fit various newspapers and periodicals and works closely with male editors and peers In examining the rise of the Victorian woman writer as a serious social and political journalist this book adds to current critical understanding of female political expression authorial agency and cultural authority in nineteenth century England Victorian Studies

Dickens, Reynolds, and Mayhew on Wellington Street Mary L. Shannon, 2016-03-09 A glance over the back pages of mid nineteenth century newspapers and periodicals published in London reveals that Wellington Street stands out among imprint addresses Between 1843 and 1853 Household Words Reynolds's Weekly Newspaper the Examiner Punch the Athenaeum the Spectator the Morning Post and the serial edition of London Labour and the London Poor to name a few were all published from this short street off the Strand Mary L. Shannon identifies for the first time the close proximity of the offices of Charles

Dickens G W M Reynolds and Henry Mayhew examining the ramifications for the individual authors and for nineteenth century publishing What are the implications of Charles Dickens his arch competitor the radical publisher G W M Reynolds and Henry Mayhew being such close neighbours Given that London was capital of more than Britain alone what connections does Wellington Street reveal between London print networks and the print culture and networks of the wider empire How might the editors experiences make us rethink the ways in which they and others addressed their anonymous readers as friends as if they were part of their immediate social network As Shannon shows readers in the London of the 1840s and 50s despite advances in literacy print technology and communications were not simply an imagined community of individuals who read in silent privacy but active members of an imagined network that punctured the anonymity of the teeming city and even the empire
