of the area following the portrait and Kodak eras of the past History shows that despite huge changes in photographic technology and the way it has been sold people continue to use photographs to improve memory support communication and reinforce identity The future will involve a shift in the balance of these core activities and a replacement of the family album with various multimedia archives for individuals families and communities This raises a number of issues that should be taken into account when designing new technologies and business services in this area including the ownership and privacy of content multimedia standards home ICT infrastructure and younger and older users of images The book is a must for designers and engineers of imaging technology and social media who want a better understanding of the history of domestic photography in order to shape its future It will also be of value to students and researchers in science and technology studies and visual culture as a fascinating case study of the evolving use of photographs and photographic technology in Western society

Nonhuman Photography Joanna Zylińska, 2024-07-02 A new philosophy of photography that goes beyond humanist concepts to consider imaging practices from which the human is absent as both subject and agent Today in the age of CCTV drones medical body scans and satellite images photography is increasingly decoupled from human agency and human vision In Nonhuman Photography Joanna Zylińska offers a new philosophy of photography going beyond the human centric view to consider imaging practices from which the human is absent Zylińska argues further that even those images produced by humans whether artists or amateurs entail a nonhuman mechanical element that is they involve the execution of technical and cultural algorithms that shape our image making devices as well as our viewing practices At the same time she notes photography is increasingly mobilized to document the precariousness of the human habitat and tasked with helping us imagine a better tomorrow With its conjoined human nonhuman agency and vision Zylińska claims photography functions as both a form of control and a life shaping force Zylińska explores the potential of photography for developing new modes of seeing and imagining and presents images from her own photographic project Active Perceptual Systems She also examines the challenges posed by digitization to established notions of art culture and the media In connecting biological extinction and technical obsolescence and discussing the parallels between photography and fossilization she proposes to understand photography as a light induced process of fossilization across media and across time scales
