Archaeology, Copper, and Complexity in the Middle Atlantic Region Gregory Denis Lattanzi, 2022-01-14 For the prehistoric people of the Middle Atlantic region copper held a fascination higher than rank achievement or status Native copper artifacts along with other exotic objects were seen as a conduit or connection between the living and the dead and were used in burial Other studies have viewed the use of such artifacts in burials as indicative of an individual's status and rank providing evidence for complex society In Archaeology Copper and Complexity Gregory Denis Lattanzi contends that such economic explanations should be rethought arguing that the presence of highly exotic artifacts like copper beads and gorgets could be representative of the different mechanisms at play within prehistoric ideology ceremonialism and ritual Archaeological Theory and Scientific Practice Andrew

Jones,2001-12-06 Is archaeology an art or a science This question has been hotly debated over the last few decades with the rise of archaeological science At the same time archaeologists have seen a change in the intellectual character of their discipline as many writers have adopted approaches influenced by social theory The discipline now encompasses both archaeological scientists and archaeological theorists and discussion regarding the status of archaeology remains polarised In this 2001 book Andrew Jones argues that we need to analyse the practice of archaeology Through an analysis of archaeological practice influenced by recent developments in the field of science studies and with the aid of extensive case studies he develops a new framework which allows the interpretative and methodological components of the discipline to work in tandem His reassessment of the status and character of archaeology will be of interest to students scholars and professionals Dauids Island Project, New Rochelle ,1990
