Scrutinising Science The Changing Uk Government Of Science:

Scrutinising Science R. Boden,D. Cox,M. Nedeva,K. Barker,2003-12-17 By the 1980s UK government research laboratories were an often quirky but always essential part of the state sector In one of the most radical experiments in the organization and management of scientific research attempted in the UK successive Conservative governments sought to reform these laboratories by applying the market based solution of New Public Management Scrutinising Science explores and critiques that reform process by examining the laboratories new organizational forms the new visions of what science is for implicit in the reform agenda and the new forms of scientific knowledge production that have arisen as a consequence

Scrutinising Science Rebecca Boden,2004 For many laboratories this meant some form of privatisation for the remainder it meant a significant degree of marketisation within the public sector Scrutinising Science explores and critiques that reform process by examining the laboratories new organisational forms the new visions of what science is for as defined in the reform agenda and the new forms of scientific knowledge production that have arisen as a consequence BOOK JACKET

Towards European Science Linda Wedlin,Maria Nedeva,2015-12-18 Since the European Research Area was launched at the beginning of the century significant efforts have been made to realise the vision of a coherent space for science and research in Europe But how does one define such a space and measure its development This timely book analyses the dynamics of change in the policy and governance of science and research within Europe over the past decade It widens the scope of traditional policy analysis by focusing attention on the interaction between policy rationales new governance mechanisms and the organisational dynamics of the scientific field The contributors build a novel analytical framework to understand the European research space as one shifting from a fragmented space of Science in Europe to one that is labeled European Science The chapters explore the dynamics of this shift through the lenses of political science organisation theory science policy and related analytical traditions Towards European Science is an interdisciplinary book which will attract a wide set of scholars and professionals interested in science policy governance and scientific practice It will also be of use to university leaders and managers as well as policy makers and practitioners working on issues of internationalisation and the Europeanisation of science Innovation, Science, and Institutional Change Jerald Hage,Marius Meeus,2006-10-26

Innovation is central to the dynamics and success of organizations and society in the modern world the process famously referred to by Schumpeter as gales of creative destruction This ambitious and wide ranging book makes the case for a new approach to the study of innovation It is the editors conviction that this approach must accomplish several objectives it must recognise that innovation encompasses changes in organizations and society as well as products and processes it must be genuinely interdisciplinary and include contributes from economics sociology management and political science It must be international to reflect both different patterns or systems of innovation and different research traditions and it must reflect the fundamental changes taking place in science research and knowledge creation at all levels To this end they have gathered together a distinguished group of economists sociologists political scientists and organization innovation and institutional theorists to both assess current research on innovation and to set out a new research agenda This has been achieved through careful planning and development of the project and also through the ensuing structure of the book which looks in turn at Product and Process Innovation perhaps the best established focus of existing research on innovation Scientific Research assessing the changing character of basic research and science policy Knowledge Dynamics in Context encompassing organizational learning in all its aspects and Institutional Change an analysis of the institutional context that can shape enable and constrain innovation This carefully integrated and wide ranging book will be an ideal reference point for academics and researchers across the Social Sciences interested in all dimensions of innovation be they in the field of Management Studies Economics Organization Studies Sociology Political Science and Science and Technology Studies

Research Outside The Academy Lisa Börjesson,Isto Huvila,2018-09-04 This book analyses the practical information related dimensions of professional knowledge making and communication in extra academic organisations It treats the sites where research takes place and where knowledge is created outside academia in the light among other things of new digital resources It provides valuable insight into the practices through which extra academic research data and results are produced and made available and the settings in which this takes place With case studies of knowledge making in government organizations and state research institutes as well as in cultural and heritage institutions this book broadens the perspective on knowledge sharing communication and publication and how knowing changes as a result of the professional knowledge making practices in the digital age Research outside the Academy is ideal for students at all levels looking for an introduction to the topic of research and knowledge making in society Moreover researchers and professionals in the fields of library and information science and science and technology studies will find the book to be adding to previous understandings of scholarly documentation and communication

Higher Education and National Development David Bridges, Palmira Juceviciene, Roberta Jucevicius, Terence H. McLaughlin, Jolanta Stankeviciute, 2006-11-27 Universities and societies around the world are involved in significant transition Universities are now invited to expand their central aims and purposes in order to embrace a role in relation to the development of the societies in which they are located This change of focus has major implications for curricula modes of teaching and the student body International contributors to this wideranging text discuss different aspects of the phenomenon of globalisation in relation to higher education but also in relation to moves by nation states to devolve government to regional and subregional bodies and the implications this has for educational systems

Economics of the European Union Michael Artis, Frederick Nixon, 2007-05-17 The new edition of this successful text analyses the current economic issues facing a rapidly changing Europe The authors combine policy history and data to present a global perspective of the EU written with a range of students taking an introductory module in European Economics in mind With new material on the economic relationship between the EU and the US Enlargement and the Lisbon process the authors consider the changing landscape and Europe's development as a major global player The authors use history theory and analysis including comparative data to evaluate Economic policies ranging from the Common Agricultural Policy and Competition Policy to Social Policy and Monetary Policy and to assess issues such as unemployment and foreign aid The contributors are drawn from a range of Universities such as Vienna Manchester Brussels LSE and Purdue as well as institutions such as the IMF and the European Central Bank

The Crisis of Innovation in Water and Wastewater Duncan A. Thomas, Roger R. Ford, 2005-01-01 This is an extremely well researched and documented book The authors hypothesis is that the current water and wastewater sector is failing the populations of the western world by clinging to orthodox and short term visions of new technology and innovation and also failing the developing nations by believing that delivery of western world high technology solutions is a contribution to humanitarian development This is the crisis of innovation To many practitioners in the water industry the book will be perceived to be hypercritical of the incrementalism conservative and dogged traditionalism of the sector but in fact it is stimulating and positive In the latter chapters an alternate more holistic model of water development is described There needs to be a movement from large central infrastructure resources to distributed systems that are more appropriate to local needs and can be coupled with environmentally sustainable energy sources and practices Tim Lack European Topic Centre on Water UK Whilst acknowledging a massive leap from standpipe to universal water provision in 100 years in developed countries the authors of this book see problems for global sustainable water supply and wastewater removal in the future Using the UK water industry as an example they describe the global water industry as risk averse and unwilling to innovate a view that is encouraged by the institutional and financial regimes under which it works The book explores the reasons for concern and sets out some hard hitting views on how the water industry is failing to identify and tackle the essential problems in a world which is becoming ever more depleted of fresh water The concluding chapter brings to a focus the problems of the crisis in innovation and gives some concrete suggestions for tackling them This volume should raise the awareness of policymakers and regulators technologists and concerned members of the public Peter Chave Independent Consultant and formerly Head of Pollution Control National Rivers Authority UK This significant new book highlights a little acknowledged but potentially catastrophic crisis of innovation in the global water sector which institutions and industries are frighteningly ill equipped to tackle or even accept It suggests potential new technology and policy approaches to overcome both current and future problems The book explores how technological innovation is vital to help provide sustainable water in both the UK and developing countries However innovation is being overlooked in the face of global trends to privatize and regulate water utilities The authors highlight how the global water sector is failing to respond to increasingly complex world needs and continues to build largely unsustainable centralized infrastructures opposing more appropriate distributed and local modern technologies The book also includes suggestions for potentially innovative technology and policy solutions to meet escalating global water and wastewater demands Importantly the authors adopt a long term perspective that crosses both disciplinary and institutional boundaries and include an international comparative perspective covering a diverse range of examples and countries This comprehensive book will have a broad appeal amongst researchers and academics with an interest in technology management innovation studies geography and development studies It will also be a valuable asset for water regulators and governmental and non governmental organisations working in this field

Society, Culture and Technology at the Dawn of the 21st Century Katarzyna Leszczyńska, Janusz Mucha, 2010-04-16 The articles in this collection analyse methodological aspects of today's hard sciences and humanities and of applied research in the field of high technology The authors explore structural and cultural contexts of scientific research relations between information technologies and our everyday life as well as relations between innovation and business culture

Research and Innovation Policy G. Bruce Doern, Christopher Stoney, 2009-01-01 This collection is the first systematic examination of the evolving relationship between the federal government and Canadian universities as revealed through changes in federal research and innovation policies The Transformation of University Institutional and Organizational Boundaries Emilia Primeri, Emanuela Reale, 2015-11-02 An emerging issue in higher education studies is that of boundaries crossing This is the main topic of the book The transformation of University institutional and organizational boundaries Several signals of shifting boundaries can be envisaged in higher education and research institutions which could be glimpsed through organizations the institutions and changes to the academic profession That of boundaries crossing in Higher Education is a complex and heterogeneous issue which characterizes scientific knowledge today and represents a key issue when looking at University transformations across contexts and policies instruments and practices The analysis of boundaries supplies interpretative frameworks for the interactions between the development of professions and disciplines as well as the relationships of the science with various parts of society such as state professionals and the market Fuelling further the discussion on HEIs transformations allows capturing changes in the function objectives and scope of higher education and research institutions the move beyond sectoral and disciplinary boundaries and the increasingly blurred boundaries of academic professions and of scientific work Public policies and HE reforms can push or impede the mentioned transformations but they can also derive from individual likelihood of moving in blurring spaces or from the transformations of the epistemic communities and the emergence of new fields and sectors Hence changes are there open to our observations World Yearbook of Education 2008 Debbie Epstein, Rebecca Boden, Rosemary Deem, Fazal Rizvi, Susan Wright, 2013-01-11 This volume examines higher education in globalized conditions through a focus on the spatial historic and economic relations of power in which it is embedded Distinct geometries of power are emerging as the knowledge production capability of universities is increasingly globalized Changes in the organization and practices of higher education tend to travel from the West to the rest Thus distinctive geographies of knowledge are being produced intersected by geometries of power and raising questions about the recognition production control and usage of university produced knowledge in different regions of the world What flows of power and influence can be traced in the shifting geographies of higher education How do national systems locate themselves in global arenas and what consequences does such positioning have for local practices and relations of higher education How do universities and university workers respond to the increasing commodification of knowledge How do consumers of knowledge assess the quality of the goods on offer in a global marketplace The 2008 volume of the World yearbook addresses these questions highlighting four key areas Producing and Reproducing the University How is the university adapting to the pressures of globalization Supplying Knowledge What structural and cultural changes are demanded from the university in its new role as a free market supplier of knowledge Demanding Knowledge Marketing and Consumption How can consumers best assess the quality of education on a global scale Transnational Academic Flows What trends are evident in the flow of students knowledge and capital with what consequences The 2008 volume is interdisciplinary in its approach drawing on scholarship from accounting finance and human geography as well as from the field of education Transnational influences examined include UNESCO and OECD GATS and the effects of digital technologies Contrasting contexts include Central and Eastern Europe Finland China and India and England With its emphasis on the interrelationship of knowledge and power and its attention to emergent spatial inequalities Geographies of Knowledge Geometries of Power Framing the Future of Higher Education provides a rich and compelling resource for understanding emergent practices and relations of knowledge production and exchange in global higher education
