Sean M. Maloney,2007 In Learning to Love the Bomb Sean M Maloney explores the controversial subject of Canada s acquisition of nuclear weapons during the Cold War Based on newly declassified Canadian and U S documents it examines policy strategy operational and technical matters and weaves these seemingly disparate elements into a compelling story that finally unlocks several Cold War mysteries For example while U S military forces during the 1962 Cuban Missile Crisis were focused on the Caribbean Sea and the southeastern United States Canadian forces assumed responsibility for defending the northern United States with aircraft armed with nuclear depth charges flying patrols and guarding against missile attack by Soviet submarines This defensive strategy was a closely guarded secret because it conflicted with Canada s image as a peacekeeper and therefore a more passive member of NATO than its ally to the south It is revealed here for the first time The place of nuclear weapons in Canadian history has until now been a highly secret and misunderstood field subject to rumor rhetoric half truths and propaganda Learning to Love the Bomb reveals the truth about Canada s role as a nuclear power construction of capital ships and limiting the numbers that signatories were allowed to maintain so numerous ships were scrapped or disposed of and the majority of planned vessels were either cancelled whilst being built or never laid down. By the late 1920s the Royal Navy's battle force comprised of the two Nelson class ships the battlecruisers Hood, Renown and Repulse and Revenge and Queen Elizabeth class ships all designed before the First World War. In 1928 the Royal Navy began planning a new class of battleships which was put on hold with the signing of the Treaty of London. In 1935 realising its battle fleet was becoming dated as other nations laid down new classes of battleships the Royal Navy recommenced planning capital ships within treaty limitations. The result was the King George V class battleships. Regarded by some as the worst new generation battleships in the Second World War the King George V class were Britain's most modern battleships during the conflict and saw action in some of the most famous engagements from the sinking of the Bismarck in 1941 to the surrender of Japan in 1945. This book charts the story of the King George V class from its conception and design through to the operational history of the ships in the class.

Maritime History at the Crossroads Frank Broeze, 2017-10-18. This volume seeks to critically review the contemporary state of maritime historiography as it stands at the volume's publication date of 1995. The volume is comprised of thirteen essays each focused on the recent research into the maritime concerns of a particular geographical location listed as follows: Australia, Canada, China, Denmark, Germany, Greece, Ibero America, India, the Netherlands, the Ottoman Empire, Spain, the United States and a final chapter concerning historians and maritime labour in Britain, Australia and New Zealand. One concern made evident by the collection is the lack of stable identity and cohesive aims within maritime history; the subject holds many conflicting definitions and concepts. The purpose of this volume is to explore the recent developments in maritime history plus the growth of scholarly interest to provide a beacon and stimulus for future work and to clearly direct and define maritime historiography toward a solid position in the field of history.

The Enduring Crown Commonwealth Michael J. Smith, Stephen Klimczuk-Massion, 2023-05-15. The controversial Netflix series The Crown covers the tumultuous period from the Queen's accession in 1952 to the present day and so does this book which explores the rise, decline and to some unexpected rebound of the historic UK, Canada, Australia and New Zealand alliance. While a post-Brexit and post-Elizabethan Britain seeks a new role in today's volatile world its traditional partner countries also recognise the logic of reinvigorating their relationship based on a multitude of still strong cultural, economic, political and military ties including the monarchy as a uniquely shared global and not merely British institution. But this wasn't always the case. Although in the 1950s commentators spoke of a new Elizabethan Age with much postwar hope across the Commonwealth that optimism quickly faded. By the 1970s many thought Britain washed up and that Crown and Commonwealth ties and allegiance were becoming obsolete. Perhaps unsurprisingly the four countries increasingly went their separate ways. So a groggy time traveller from that period appearing in London, Toronto, Sydney or Auckland today would be taken by surprise by the durability of the Crown even as it has passed to King Charles and the growing reconvergence of the four CANZUK realms in terms of trade defence foreign policy coordination freedom of movement mutual recognition of professional qualifications and other new or revived links This book evocatively tells the whole story of where we are what is possible for the future and not least how we got here In today's age of global instability and raw power politics this renewed Anglosphere Crown Commonwealth alliance is more important and relevant than ever Tirpitz Daniel Knowles, 2018-04-17

Angus L. Macdonald T. Stephen Henderson, 2007-04-21 Perhaps one of the most influential Canadian premiers of the Twentieth Century and one of the leading political intellectuals of his generation Angus L Macdonald dominated politics in Nova Scotia for more than twenty years serving as premier from 1933 to 1940 and again from 1945 until his death in 1954 One rival referred to him as the pope out of respect for his political infallibility From 1940 to 1945 Macdonald guided Canada's war effort at sea as Minister of National Defence for Naval Services under his watch the Royal Canadian Navy expanded faster than any other navy in the world This new work by T Stephen Henderson is the first academic biography of Macdonald whose life provides a framework for the study of Canada's pre and post war transformation and a rare opportunity to compare the political history of the two periods Generally Macdonald's political thinking reflected a progressive interwar liberalism that found its clearest expression in the 1940 Rowell Sirois report on federal provincial relations The report proposed a redistribution of responsibilities and resources that would allow poorer provinces greater autonomy and reduce overlapping jurisdictions in the federal system Ottawa abandoned Rowell Sirois in the postwar period and Macdonald fell out of step with the national Liberal party that he had once seemed destined to lead Within Nova Scotia however his ardent defence of provincial powers and his commitment to building a modern infrastructure enabled him to win election after election and transform the face and identity of his province
