Uneasy Translations Rita Kothari, 2022-09-30 Uneasy Translations Self Experience and Indian Literature interweaves the personal journey of an academic into reflections around self language and translation with an eye on the intangibly available category of experience It dwells on quieter modes of being political of making knowledge democratic and of seeing gendered language in the everyday In an unusual combination of real life incidents and textual examples it provides a palimpsest of what it is to be in a classroom in the domestic sphere straddling the manyness of language and of course in a constant mode of translation that remains incomplete and unconcluded Through both a poignant voice and rigorous questions Kothari asks what it is to live and teach in India as a woman a multilingual researcher and as both a subject and a rebel of the discipline of English She draws from multiple bhasha texts with an uncompromising eye on their autonomy and intellectual tradition The essays range from questions of knowledge affect caste shame and humiliation to other cultural memories Translation avoids the arrogance of the original it has the freedom to say it and not be held accountable which can make it both risky and exciting More importantly it also speaks after anuvaad rather than only for or instead and this ethic informs the way Kothari writes this book breaking new ground with gentle provocations

Zora Neale Hurston's Their Eyes Were Watching God highlights the vitality of African American culture. This casebook demonstrates how African Americans fashioned themselves individually and collectively to combat racism, classism, and sexism. With provocative documents that contextualize the complex issues of the novel, Lester provides an excellent resource for students and teachers first approaching the excitement and cultural flavor that define Hurston's novels. The casebook is an encyclopedia of African American folk culture that simultaneously presents historical, political, and social commentary on the relationships between men and women and between blacks and whites in America. Documents include interviews with people living in the South at the time of the novel's publication, poetry, rap, folktales, and sermons. Also included are original materials on ebony, minstrel songs, the blues tradition, the novel in theatrical and dance performance, and materials on Hurston's hometown of Eatonville, Florida.
