Non Governmental Organizations And Rural Poverty Alleviation:

Non-governmental Organizations and Rural Poverty Alleviation Roger Riddell, Mark Robinson, 1995 There has been considerable interest in recent years in the ability of non governmental organisations to work with the rural poor in developing countries in order to improve their quality of life and economic status through the provision of credit skills training and other inputs for income generation programmes This book brings together the results of 16 evaluations in 4 countries Bangladesh India Uganda and Zimbabwe to provide a detailed assessment of the contribution that NGOs make to rural poverty alleviation The results indicate that NGO projects are successful when they build in a high degree of participation when the staff are committed to the goals of the project and when they are managed by strong and competent leaders Many of the projects studied contributed to increases in income and welfare However not all projects were successful contrary to received wisdom about the efficacy of NGO interventions many failed to reach the very poorest most were costly to implement and few of the projects demonstrated an ability to continue once external funding was withdrawn These findings provide strong support for viewing NGOs as a mechanism for helping to reduce rural poverty but also demonstrate that many of the interventions are isolated or one off The impact of NGOs could be heightened by increasing the size of the intervention encouraging greater cooperation among NGOs and by fostering closer cooperation with governments This study will make an impact in the development community and its conclusions will help shape NGO and poverty agendas in the coming years The book will appeal to all those concerned with rural development NGOs and development programmes Partners in Rural Poverty Alleviation Nations Unies. Interagency Committee on Integrated Rural Development for Asia and the Pacific, 1992

Ngos And Rural Poverty M.L. Narasaiah, 2005 Non governmental organisations have become the new hope of development cooperation Criticism of official and multi lateral development assistance is mounting After more than for decades of international cooperation there is more poverty in the Third World with the exception of a few countries than ever before It has become clear that existing instruments cannot bring about change Even the large donor organisations doubt their own ability to solve problems and find their doubts confirmed by internal evaluations What led to this state of affairs and is there reason to hope that the NGOs can do a better job Evaluating the Impact of NGOs in Rural Poverty

Alleviation John De Coninck, Mark A. Robinson, 1991 Non-Governmental Organizations and the State in Asia John Farrington, David J. Lewis, 2014-01-09 This presents twenty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation initiated by NGOs in Asia Beginning with a broad review of institutional activity at the grassroots the authors set the case material within the context of NGO relations with the State and their contribution to democratisation and the consolidation of rural civil society Specific questions are raised how good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in present agriculture how effective are NGOs at strengthening grassroots organizations and how do will donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State This title is part of a series on Non Governmental Organizations co ordinated by the Overseas Development Institute To complete this comprehensive review and critique there are two other regional case study volumes on Africa and Latin America and an overview volume Reluctant Partners Non-Governmental Organizations and the State in Africa James G. Copestake, Kate Wellard, 2024-11-01 This presents twenty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation initiated by NGOs in Africa Beginning with a broad review of institutional activity at the grassroots the authors set the case material within the context of NGO relations with the State and their contribution to democratisation and the consolidation of rural civil society Specific questions are raised how good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in present agriculture how effective are NGOs at strengthening grassroots organizations and how do will donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State This title is part of a series on Non Governmental Organizations co ordinated by the Overseas Development Institute To complete this comprehensive review and critique there are two other regional case study volumes on Asia and Latin America and an overview volume Reluctant Partners Non-Governmental Organisations - Performance and Accountability Michael Edwards, David Hulme, 2014-03-18 The last decade has seen some significant changes in international development and in the status of non governmental organisations operating in the field Not only has the number of NGOs virtually doubled many of them have seen a considerable growth in their budgets and have grown closer to governments and official aid agencies NGOs are acknowledged by many to be more effective agents of development than governments or commercial interests even as a magic bullet for development problems Despite these positive trends the real impact of the NGO sector is not well documented This is partly because NGO performance assessment and accountability methods are weak and partly because NGOs are caught up increasingly in the world of official aid which pushes them towards certain forms of evaluation at the expense of others This unique book takes a hard and critical look at these issues and describes how NGOs can and must improve the way they measure and account for their performance if they are to be truly effective

Non-Governmental Organizations and the State in Latin America Anthony Bebbington, Graham Thiele, 2023-06-16 This presents twenty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation initiated by NGOs in Latin America Beginning with a broad review of institutional activity at the grassroots the authors set the case material within the context of NGO relations with the State and their contribution to democratisation and the consolidation of rural civil society Specific questions are raised how good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in present agriculture how effective are NGOs at strengthening grassroots organizations and how do will donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State This title is part of a series on Non Governmental Organizations co ordinated by the Overseas Development Institute To complete this comprehensive review and critique there are two other regional case study volumes on Asia and Africa and an overview volume Reluctant Partners Reluctant Partners?

Non-Governmental Organizations, the State and Sustainable Agricultural Development Anthony Bebbington, John Farrington, David J. Lewis, Kate Wellard, 2005-07-15 Reluctant Partners combines comprehensive empirical insights into NGOs work in agriculture with wider considerations of their relations with the State and their contribution to democratic pluralism This overview volume for the Non Governmental Organizations series contextualizes and synthesizes the case study material in the three regional volumes on Africa Asia and Latin America where over sixty specially commissioned case studies of farmer participatory approaches to agricultural innovation are presented Specific questions are raised How good bad are NGOs at promoting technological innovation and addressing constraints to change in peasant culture How effective are NGOs at strengthening local organizations How do donor pressures influence NGOs and their links to the State

Non-Governmental Organizations and Development David Lewis, Nazneen Kanji, Nuno S. Themudo, 2020-12-29 This book is an introduction to the wide ranging topic of non governmental organizations NGOs and development combining a critical overview of the main research literature with a set of up to date theoretical and practical insights drawn from experience in Asia Europe Africa and elsewhere The revised second edition highlights the continuing importance of NGOs in development while fully engaging with the criticisms that their increased profile now attracts It considers issues such as securitization changing technologies and recent concerns about safeguarding as well as going into more detail around topics such as market based development and social enterprise The diversity of NGOs and their roles is discussed against the broader historical background of struggles for social justice in different societies as well as within the shifting ideological contexts of neoliberalism and populism Using a broad range of short case studies of both successful and unsuccessful interventions the authors analyze how interest in NGOs has both reflected and informed wider theoretical trends and debates within development studies The book argues that NGOs are central to both development theory and practice and are likely to remain important actors for many years to come This critical overview will be useful to students of development studies at undergraduate and master s levels in fields and disciplines as diverse as International Development Studies International Relations Geography Anthropology Global Studies Politics and International Studies as well as general readers and practitioners

Non-governmental Organizations (NGOs) and Sustainable Development in Sub-Saharan Africa Robert A. Dowie, 2008-01-01 Written to provide guidance for civil society organizations and their client groups this book examines the role of NGOs in the development processes on the African continent It raises questions about the influence of funding agencies over the NGOs they support and explores the challenges NGOs face The book argues that increased knowledge and cooperation on all parts is essential to achieve sustainable development This book also concludes that sustainable development activities are not beneficial to every community in Africa Taking into consideration globalization and studies of sub Saharan countries this book concludes that new models of leadership are necessary for the success of Africa and NGOs are a vital part of achieving that development

Public Policy Toward Non-governmental Organizations in Developing Countries William Jack,2001 If a developing country government is not good at providing public services such as health care education and social protection would NGOs be better at doing so What advantages do NGOs have over for profit providers of publicly funded services And considering the importance of donor funding which is better for delivering such services an international NGO or a grassroots NGO

Non-Governmental Organizations and Health in Developing Countries A. Green,A. Matthias,1996-12-03 Non governmental organizations NGOs are increasingly recognised as playing a significant role in the health sector in developing countries This book examines the background to the growth both in the sector and interest in it the strengths and weaknesses of NGOs and the arguments for and against their use for different aspects of the health sector It focuses particularly on the relationship between the State and non governmental organizations and the issues critical to the development of policies towards the sector

Non-Governmental Organizations, Management and Development David Lewis,2014-03-05 Non Governmental Development Organizations have seen turbulent times over the decades however recent years have seen them grow to occupy high profile positions in the fight against poverty They are now seen as an important element of civil society a concept that has been given increasing importance by global policy makers This book has evolved during the course of that period to be a prime resource for those working or wishing to work with and for NGOs The third edition of Non Governmental Organizations Management and Development is fully updated and thoroughly reorganized covering key issues including but not limited to debates on the changing global context of international development and the changing concepts and practices used by NGOs The interdisciplinary approach employed by David Lewis results in an impressive text that draws upon current research in non profit management development management public management and management theory exploring the activities relationships and internal structure of the NGO This book remains the first and only comprehensive and academically grounded guide to the issues facing international development NGOs as they operate in increasingly complex and challenging conditions around the world It is the perfect resource for students undertaking studies of NGOs and the non profit sector in addition to being an excellent resource for development studies students more generally

Non-Governmental Organisations in China Lu Yiyi,2009 NGOs and Environmental Policies David Potter,2005-06-28 Covering the work of non governmental organizations in trying to change the environmental policies of governments and business organizations this study looks at field research in Asia and Africa and relates it to theoretical issues in the academic field

Environmental Policies and NGO Influence Susan Carr,David Humphreys,Alan Thomas,2013-01-11 This book examines the conditions under which non governmental organisations NGOs may exert influence on policies to conserve and sustainably use natural resources in sub Saharan Africa The book is unique in bringing together NGO campaigners in three African countries with academics specialising in development studies systems and environmental policy Foreign Aid for Indian NGOs Pushpa Sundar,2020-11-29 This book explores what difference development aid has made to the size complexity style of functioning values and future direction of the NGO sector in India It does this first by giving a comprehensive documentation of the experience of Indian NGOs with foreign aid since Independence Simultaneously it also analyses in a broad historical perspective some of the issues which are the subject of contemporary debate regarding the voluntary sector and aid such as who decides what is development and how it should be brought about whether foreign donors have hidden agendas and if their aid amounts to cultural imperialism and whether aid has made NGOs more self reliant The book also looks at the tripartite relationship between NGOs donors and governments examining for instance whether the government is justified in imposing restrictions on receipt of funds by NGOs on the grounds that terrorist activities and religiously motivated communal strife are often financed with funds from abroad with NGOs being used as fronts for both

Non-Governmental Organizations in Contemporary China Qiusha Ma,2005-11-16 Based on documentary materials including interviews with key players in China this book charts the development of non governmental and non profit organizations in China from the late 1970s to the present day It recounts how in the aftermath of the 1978 reforms that created a market economy and diversified interests and social life new institutions and organizations outside of the state system increased dramatically in number size and influence These organizations which barely existed before the reforms began in the late 1970s carry out many social economic and cultural tasks neglected by the government Qiusha Ma examines two key questions crucial to understanding the development of NGOs in China First is it possible under China s one party state for non governmental organizations to thrive and play important economic social and political functions And secondly are NGOs facilitating the formation of a civil society in China
