Nonextrapolative Methods In Business Forecasting:

Nonextrapolative Methods in Business Forecasting F. John Pessolano, 1985-08-22 Jay Mendell explores the profound implications and consequences of the forecaster's new and changing role in an economy based on high technology entrepreneurship. This incisive text explains the principles of nonextrapolative forecasting planning and compares them with conventional forecasting planning methods. Case studies of nonextrapolative forecasting and planning in Sears, AT&T, a large hotel chain, an electric power company, and the Security Pacific Bank are provided. They deal with the practical problems of setting up forecasting planning groups and maintaining their existence and influence through internal planning processes. The political process of acceptance and implementation of forecasting planning is also explained. Comprehensive planning and forecasting documents are included as appendix material.

Economic Forecasting Ken Holden, D. Peel, John L. Thompson, 1990. This work is the only currently available text that provides comprehensive coverage of the methods and applications in the rapidly developing field of forecasting the future state of the economy.

Leading Organizations Gill Robinson Hickman, 2010. The Second Edition of Leading Organizations offers an expanded focus on the fluid roles of leaders and participants, followers, and their mutual responsibility for organizational leadership. Like the first edition, this text contains chapters on implementing the organization's mission, structure, culture, and strategy, written by leading scholars in the field. New features include Strategic leadership, Virtual leadership, Leadership organizational change and conflict, Building a culture of leadership.

Forecasting and Market Analysis Techniques George Kress, John Snyder, 1994-05-17. Sales forecasting and market analysis are the cornerstones of the planning process. Yet these two tasks are usually performed by people with only limited training in either area, because most firms do not have full-time forecasters or market analysts. The authors acknowledge this situation and attempt to describe the key techniques for forecasting sales and analyzing markets in a format that meets the needs of an audience with limited quantitative skills. In addition to its basic approach, another strength of this book is that it combines the coverage of two key activities, forecasting and market analysis, that are performed by the same person in most middle-sized and smaller firms. The book's contents and format were designed with two audiences in mind: persons assigned to develop forecasts and market analyses but who are not specialists in either area, and persons who will be incorporating these results in their planning and decision making. The major portion of the book is devoted to the three basic categories of forecasting models: time series, causal, and judgmental, emphasizing the most widely used models in each category. Special attention is also given to the sources for obtaining the data needed to make forecasts and analyze markets. The latter part of the book describes procedures for developing market and sales potentials, methods for segmenting markets, and some analytic techniques such as conjoint analysis and cluster analysis, gaining increased usage among market analysts.
