The African American Voice in U.S. Foreign Policy Since World War II Michael L. Krenn, 2019-08-08 Following World War II America was witness to two great struggles The first was on the international front and involved the fight for freedom around the globe as millions of people in Asia and Africa rose up to throw off their European colonial masters In the decades following 1945 dozens of new nations joined the ranks of independent countries Following the Civil War the African American voice in U S foreign affairs continued to grow In the late nineteenth century a few African Americans such as Frederick Douglass even served as U S diplomats to the black republics of Liberia and Haiti When America began its overseas thrust during the 1890s African American opinion was divided

The African Charter on Human and Peoples' Rights U. Oji Umzurike, 2023-08-28 This book is an in depth study of the African Charter of Human and Peoples Rights written with the insight of an insider It assesses the effectiveness of the Charter and of the African Commission on Human and Peoples Rights in its formative years It also compares the Charter with other major human rights instruments The author asserts that respect for human rights made the existence of African societies possible despite the eras of gross violation The survival of African societies indeed their continued development depends on respect for human rights While conceding the universality of human rights the author underscores African specificities and peculiarities He discusses the proper limits of exclusively internal matters as often claimed by African spokesmen and puts forward the legitimate concerns of the international community as an effective check to arbitrariness and other violations. The book will be of special interest to international lawyers, law students, the judiciary and foreign office officials. The human rights activist will find it particularly useful in dealing with the African situation. AF Press Clips, 1987-07 Elements of African Bioethics in a Western Frame B. Tangwa, 2010-11-01. For millennia Africans have lived on the African continent in close contact with the diversities of nature, flora, fauna and human and in so doing they have developed cultures, values, attitudes and perspectives to the problems, ethical and otherwise, that have arisen from the existential pressures of their situation. The problem, however, is that such values and perspectives do not necessarily form coherent ethical theories. Theory making is a second order activity requiring a certain amount of leisure and comfort which the existential conditions of life on the African continent have not easily permitted in the retrospectable past. The elements of African bioethics are to be found in its cultural values, traditions, customs and practices. These are researchable, highlightable and usable by those who would. The bioethical problems of our current global existential situation are such that all possible solutions, no matter their provenance, ought to be tried. Western culture has far too loud a voice combined with deaf ears in contemporary ethical discourse. But it should never be forgotten that other cultures have their own word to say and that alternative values, ways of thinking and practices exist and attempt should always be made to bring these out and to highlight them if they could possibly contribute to the satisfactory solution of a global problem. This book brings together various papers on bioethical issues and problems written at different times, some previously published, each of which attempts to bring out some African elements, perspective or concern. The African narrative style predominates through these essays but their framing conforms more or less to the Western paradigm for presenting academic issues. AF Press Clips. United States Department of State, Bureau of African Affairs, 1981. Impacts of Incarceration on the African American Family Othello Harris, R. Robin Miller. The criminal justice system has driven a wedge between black men and their children. African American men are involved in the criminal justice system whether through incarceration, probation or parole at near epidemic levels. At the same time the criminal justice system has made little or no institutional efforts to maintain or support continuing relationships between these men and their families. Consequently African American families are harmed by this in countless ways from the psychological, physical and material suffering experienced by the men themselves to losses felt by their mates, children and extended family members. The volume opens with an introduction and brief review by R. Robin Miller. Sandra Lee Browning and Lisa M Spruance outline the impacts of incarceration on the African American family. Brad Tripp explores changes in family relationships and the identity of incarcerated African American fathers. Mary Balthazar and Lula King discuss the loss of the protective effect of marital and nonmarital relationships and its impact on incarcerated African American men and the implications for African American men and those who work with them in the helping professions. Theresa Clark explores the relationship between visits by family and friends and the nature of inmate behavior In a research note Olga Grinstead Bonnie Faigeles Carrie Bancroft and Barry Zack investigate the actual costs families incur to maintain contact with family members be it emotional social or financial Patricia E O Connor uses data from sociolinguistic interviews of male inmates from a maximum security prison to study how some of these men manage to continue to fulfill the fatherhood role long distance In a concluding chapter Sandra Lee Browning Robin Miller and Lisa Spruance focus on actions of the criminal justice system that undermine the black family on reasons that black male inmate fathers are studied so rarely and discuss the role restorative justice may play This insightful volume fills a void in the literature on the role of African American men in the functioning of families It will be of interest to students of African American studies social workers and policy makers

The Gender Politics of HIV/AIDS in Women Nancy Goldstein, Jennifer L Manlowe, 1997-06 From their posts at the center of the pandemic in the laboratory the academy clinics and community based organizations experts such as Evelyn Hammonds Risa Denenberg Michelle Murrain and Paul Farmer criticize blind spots in the recognition and treatment of HIV in women and articulate accessible and practical solutions to specific areas of difficulty

African Immersion Julius A. Amin, 2014-12-18 Based on previously unused primary sources including extensive interviews in Cameroon personal journals diaries responses to questionnaires and a variety of secondary sources this study is a critical analysis of US study abroad programs in Africa Using the University of Dayton Cameroon Immersion program as a case study the work examines different aspects of experiential learning including selection orientation activities of US college students in Cameroon post immersion meetings and impact of program The nation of Cameroon and University of Dayton are uniquely ideal for the study as Cameroon is considered Africa in miniature and serves as a window to understanding many of Africa's political economic cultural and social complexities Located in the American Midwest the University of Dayton while unique shares many similarities with other American universities The study expands the boundaries of scholarship on study abroad By comparing the impact of the African experience on students to that of Returned Peace Corps Volunteers who served in that continent the study opens up avenues for comparative analyses Africa is vital to the global community and with its complex political economic cultural and social systems offers important lessons to understanding students ability to adapt to change in a rapidly changing global environment
