Remembering The Past In Contemprary African American Fiction:

Remembering the Past in Contemporary African American Fiction Keith Byerman, 2006-05-18 With close readings of more than twenty novels by writers including Ernest Gaines Toni Morrison Charles Johnson Gloria Naylor and John Edgar Wideman Keith Byerman examines the trend among African American novelists of the late twentieth century to write about black history rather than about their own present Employing cultural criticism and trauma theory Byerman frames these works as survivor narratives that rewrite the grand American narrative of individual achievement and the march of democracy The choice to write historical narratives he says must be understood historically These writers earned widespread recognition for their writing in the 1980s a period of African American commercial success as well as the economic decline of the black working class and an increase in black on black crime Byerman contends that a shared experience of suffering joins African American individuals in a group identity and writing about the past serves as an act of resistance against essentialist ideas of black experience shaping the cultural discourse of the present Byerman demonstrates that these novels disrupt the temptation in American society to engage history only to limit its significance or to crown successful individuals while forgetting the victims American Fiction of the 1990s Jay Prosser, 2016-04-01 American Fiction of the 1990s Reflections of History and Culture brings together essays from international experts to examine one of the most vital and energized decades in American literature This volume reads the rich body of 1990s American fiction in the context of key cultural concerns of the period The issues that the contributors identify as especially productive include Immigration and America s geographical borders particularly those with Latin America Racial tensions race relations and racial exchanges Historical memory and the recording of history Sex scandal and the politicization of sexuality Postmodern technologies terrorism and paranoia American Fiction of the 1990s examines texts by established authors such as Don DeLillo Toni Morrison Philip Roth and Thomas Pynchon who write some of their most ambitious work in the period but also by emergent writers such as Sherman Alexie Chang Rae Lee E Annie Proulx David Foster Wallace and Jonathan Franzen Offering new insight into both the literature and the culture of the period as well as the interaction between the two in a way that furthers the New American Studies this volume will be essential reading for students and lecturers of American literature and culture and late twentieth century fiction Contributors include Timothy Aubry Alex Blazer Kasia Boddy Stephen J Burn Andrew Dix Brian Jarvis Suzanne W Jones Peter Knight A Robert Lee Stacey Olster Derek Parker Royal Krishna Sen Zoe Trodd Andrew Warnes and Nahem Yousaf Transatlantic Memories of Slavery: Remembering the Past, Changing the Future Elisa Bordin ,Anna Scacchi, 2015-08-10 While the memorialization of slavery has generated an impressive number of publications relatively few studies deal with this subject from a transnational transdisciplinary and transracial standpoint As a historical phenomenon that crossed borders and traversed national communities and ethnic groups producing alliances that did not overlap with received identities slavery as well as its memory call for comparative investigations that may bring to light aspects obscured inherited trauma on children When characters attempt to escape trauma through physical relocation or to project their pain onto others through aggressive behavior or scapegoating the development of selfhood falters Only when trauma is confronted through verbalization and challenged with reparative images of home can memories of a positive self overcome the pain of past experiences and cultural rejection While the cultural trauma of slavery can never truly disappear Schreiber argues that memories that reconstruct a positive self whether created by people relationships a physical place or a concept help Morrison's characters to establish subjectivity A groundbreaking interdisciplinary work Schreiber's book unites psychoanalytic neurobiological and social theories into a full and richly textured analysis of trauma and the possibility of healing in Morrison's novels Reciprocal Haunting: Pat Barker's Regeneration Trilogy Karen Patrick Knutsen, Read African American Literature Aida Levy-Hussen, 2016-12-13 How to Read African American Literature offers a series of provocations to unsettle the predominant assumptions readers make when encountering post Civil Rights black fiction Foregrounding the large body of literature and criticism that grapples with legacies of the slave past Aida Levy Hussen s argument develops on two levels as a textual analysis of black historical fiction and as a critical examination of the reading practices that characterize the scholarship of our time Drawing on psychoanalysis memory studies and feminist and queer theory Levy Hussen examines how works by Toni Morrison David Bradley Octavia Butler Charles Johnson and others represent and mediate social injury and collective grief In the criticism that surrounds these novels she identifies two major interpretive approaches therapeutic reading premised on the assurance that literary confrontations with historical trauma will enable psychic healing in the present and prohibitive reading anchored in the belief that fictions of returning to the past are dangerous and to be avoided Levy Hussen argues that these norms have become overly restrictive standing in the way of a more supple method of interpretation that recognizes and attends to the indirect unexpected inconsistent and opaque workings of historical fantasy and desire Moving beyond the question of whether literature must heal or abandon historical wounds Levy Hussen proposes new ways to read African American literature now History and Hope in American Literature Benjamin Railton, 2016-11-10 Throughout history creative writers have often tackled topical subjects as a means to engage and influence public discourse American authors those born in the States and those who became naturalized citizens have consistently found ways to be critical of the more painful pieces of the country's past yet have done so with the patriotic purpose of strengthening the nation's community and future In History and Hope in American Literature Models of Critical Patriotism Ben Railton argues that it is only through an in depth engagement with history especially its darkest and most agonizing elements that one can come to a genuine form of patriotism that employs constructive criticism as a tool for civic engagement The author argues that it is through such critical patriotism that one can imagine and move toward a hopeful shared future for all Americans Railton highlights twelve works of American literature that focus on troubling periods in American history including John Steinbeck's The Grapes of Wrath David Bradley's The Chaneysville Incident Louise
