Transforming Unjust Structures Severine Deneulin, Mathias Nebel, Nicholas Sagovsky, 2006-07-06 S VERINE DENEULIN MATHIAS NEBEL AND NICHOLAS SAGOVSKY TRANSFORMING UNJUST STRUCTURES The Capability Approach THE CAPABILITY APPROACH Structural injustice has traditionally been the concern of two major academic disciplines economics and philosophy The dominant model of economics has long been that of neo classical economics For neo classical economists human well being is to be assessed by the availability of disposable income or according to goods consumed it is measured by the levels of utility achieved in the consumption of commodities Social order is fashioned by the ways consumers maximise their well being and enterprises maximise their profits A core assumption is that all commodities are commensurable they can all be measured according to a single numerical covering value which is their price Within this neo classical paradigm justice is achieved when the utility level of someone cannot be increased without another person seeing his or her utility level decrease The dominant paradigm of neo classical economics was strongly challenged when development and welfare economist Amartya Sen received the Nobel Prize for Economics in 1998 His work offered an alternative to the neo classical evaluation of human well being in the utility commodity space The underlining philosophical intuition behind Sen's work is that the standard of living lies in the living and not in the consumption of commodities In searching for an alternative measure of human well being Sen devised his capability approach

and Global Development Vicki-Ann Ware,Kirsten Sadeghi-Yekta,Tim Prentki,Wasim al Kurdi,Patrick Kabanda,2024-08-29

This book brings together a leading team of international experts in arts and global development to showcase effective practice and to explore how this vibrant interdisciplinary field has developed and what the latest research can teach us. Although arts play a central role in human development and in the health and wellbeing of individuals and communities few have attempted to comprehensively explore arts practice as global development. This Handbook first provides a theoretical framework for exploring arts and global development before surveying a comprehensive range of art forms and development practices to explore the potential of the arts to strategically and beneficially contribute to more just and equitable conditions for communities across the globe. Stretching across the arts from theatre dance and music to poetry film and visual arts the book covers topics as diverse as health education peacebuilding livelihoods sustainability activism and arts as research method in programming. The Handbook also identifies gaps in the literature pointing towards the most pressing and promising avenues for further research over the next few years. This book will be an essential resource for any researcher student or practitioner wishing to understand the role of the arts in global development and in the global south more generally.

Classifications of Countries Based on their Level of Development Lynge Nielsen,2011-02-01 The paper analyzes how the UNDP the World Bank and the IMF classify countries based on their level of development. These systems are found lacking in clarity with regard to their underlying rationale. The paper argues that a country classification system based on a transparent data driven methodology is preferable to one based on judgment or ad hoc rules. Such an alternative methodology is developed and used to construct classification systems using a variety of proxies for development attainment.

Development Discourse and Global History uses the archaeological and genealogical methods of Michel Foucault to trace the origins of development discourse back to late colonialism and notes the significant discontinuities that led to the establishment of a new discourse and its accompanying industry. This book goes on to describe the contestations appropriations and transformations of the concept. It shows how some of the trends in development discourse since the crisis of the 1980s the emphasis on participation and ownership sustainable development and free markets are incompatible with the original rules and thus lead to serious contradictions The Eurocentric authoritarian and depoliticizing elements in development discourse are uncovered whilst still recognizing its progressive appropriations The author concludes by analysing the old and new features of development discourse which can be found in the debate on Sustainable Development Goals and discussing the contribution of discourse analysis to development studies This book is aimed at researchers and students in development studies global history and discourse analysis as well as an interdisciplinary audience from international relations political science sociology geography anthropology language and literary studies The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com/books/9781315753782> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license

Amartya Sen's Work and Ideas Bina Agarwal, Jane Humphries, Ingrid Robeyns, 2013-09-13. This unique volume is the first to examine Nobel Laureate Amartya Sen's ideas through the lens of gender. His humanitarian approach to economics has been crucial to the development of several aspects of feminist economics and gender analysis. This book outlines the range and usefulness of his work for gender analysis while also exploring some of its silences and implicit assumptions. The result is a collection of groundbreaking and insightful essays which cover major topics in Sen's work such as the capability approach, justice, freedom, social choice, agency, missing women, and development and well-being. Perspectives have been drawn from both developing and developed countries with most of the authors applying Sen's concepts to cultural, geographic, and historical contexts which differ from his original applications. Significant highlights include a wide-ranging conversation between the book's editors and Sen on many aspects of his work and an essay by Sen himself on why he is disinclined to provide a definitive list of capabilities. These essays were previously published in Feminist Economics.

Natural Resource Endowment and the Fallacy of Development in Cameroon Lotsmart Fonjong, 2019-11-06. Cameroon is rich in petroleum, minerals, tropical forests, wildlife, water systems, fertile lands, and much more. Paradoxically, however, most citizens live in abject poverty and without jobs, potable water, electricity, good healthcare, and roads. This book is a thoughtful interrogation of some of the structural factors driving persistent poverty in Cameroon in the midst of natural resource abundance. It engages in a multidimensional critical analysis of the impact of natural resources on basic development indicators and concludes that good resource governance and sound management are the missing link. Natural resources alone will not create socio economic prosperity void of good management with a clear development vision and strategy in Cameroon The book assembles a wide diversity of analysis views perspectives and recommendations from economists development experts social and political scientists on Cameroons current development inertia What emerges in the end is a coherent interdisciplinary analysis of the natural resource development paradox as it plays out in an African setting Theories and good practices from Africa and beyond are systematically applied to identify and critique present policy and management approaches while providing alternative options that can unlock Cameroons natural resource wealth for national prosperity
