Schools For The Shires The Reform Of Middle Class Education In Mid Victorian England:

Schools for the Shires David Ian Allsobrook,1988 Science, Reform, and Politics in Victorian Britain Lawrence Goldman,2002-06-13 This book is a study of the relationships between social thought social policy and politics in Victorian Britain Goldman focuses on the activity of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science known as the Social Science Association For three decades this served as a forum for the discussion of Victorian social questions and as an influential adviser to governments and its history discloses how social policy was made in these years The Association which attracted many powerful contributors including politicians civil servants intellectuals and reformers had influence over policy and legislation on matters as diverse as public health and women s legal and social emancipation The SSA reveals the complex roots of social science and sociology buried in the non academic milieu of nineteenth century reform And its influence in the United States and Europe allows for a comparative approach to political and intellectual development in this period Secondary Education in England 1870-1902 Prof John Roach,John Roach,2012-10-12 In this comprehensive and extensively researched history John Roach argues for a reassessment of the relative importance of State regulation and private provision Although the public schools enjoyed their greatest prestige during this period in terms of educational reform and progress their importance has been exaggerated The role of the public school he suggests was social rather than academic and as such their power and influence is to be interpreted principally in relation to the growth of new social elites the concept of public service and the needs of the empire for a bureaucratic ruling class Only in the modern progressive movement launched by Cecil Reddie and the private provision for young women was lasting progress made Even before the 1902 Education Act however the State had spent much time and effort regulating and reforming the old educational endowments and it is in these initiatives that the foundations for the public provision of secondary educational reform are to be found Imagining the Middle Class Dror Wahrman,1995-07-13 Why and how did the British people come to see themselves as living in a society centred around a middle class The answer provided by Professor Wahrman challenges most prevalent historical narratives the key to understanding changes in conceptualisations of society the author argues lies not in underlying transformations of social structure in this case industrialisation which supposedly created and empowered the middle class but rather in changing political configurations Firmly grounded in a close reading of an extensive array of sources and supported by comparative perspectives on France and America the book offers a nuanced model for the interplay between social reality politics and the languages of class Evangelicals and Education Khim Harris,2007-09-01 This is the first history of English public schools founded by Evangelicals in the nineteenth century Five existing public schools can be traced back to this period Cheltenham College Dean Close School Monkton Combe School Trent College and St Lawrence s College Some of these schools were set up in direct competition with new Anglo Catholic schools while others drew their inspiration from and to a greater or lesser extent were modelled on their rivals Harris documents for the first time the rise of

Evangelical societies such as the influential Church Association and the little known Clerical and Lay Associations An extensive bibliography and useful biographical survey of influential Evangelicals of the period completes this groundbreaking study

History of Education: Education in its social context Roy Lowe,2000

Fee-paying Schools and Educational Change in Britain Ted Tapper,2020-11-25 Examining the history of access to private education this work sheds light on the interaction of state society and schooling Organized historically much of the analysis concentrates on contemporary political struggles and evaluates the possibility of a unified educational system

The Comprehensive Public High School G. Sherington,Craig Campbell,2006-02-04 This book traces the decline of the public comprehensive high school New educational markets emphasized school diversity and parental choice rather than social equity through common schooling and they were criticized for declining standards The book also considers government education policies and their regional manifestations

School and Society in Victorian Britain Richard Aldrich,2012-05-16 Drawing on hitherto unused sources this book represents a shift in the historiography of British education At the centre of the investigation is Joseph Payne He was one of the group of pioneers who founded the College of Preceptors in 1846 and in 1873 he was appointed to the first professorship of education in Britain established by the College of Preceptors By that date Payne had acquired a considerable reputation He was a classroom practitioner of rare skill the founder of two of the most successful Victorian private schools the author of best selling text books a scholar of note despite his lack of formal education and a leading member of the College of Preceptors and such bodies as the Scholastic Registration Association the Girls Public Day School Trust the Women s Education Union and the Social Science Association

The City and Education in Four Nations Ronald K. Goodenow,William E. Marsden,Peter Clark,2003-12-04 The City and Education in Four Nations is a response to a long standing need for the placing of urban educational study in broader comparative contexts both historical and international This volume offers an account of the historical educational experiences of four major English speaking countries opening up new research agendas in a variety of fields An international team of contributors has been assembled combining historical and educational expertise and the work should interest scholars in a number of disciplines including urban history urban and comparative education social and public policy social and cultural history and the history of education
