Media and Science-Religion Conflict Thomas Aechtner, 2020-01-22 This book examines why the religion science skirmishes known as the Evolution Wars have persisted into the 21st century It does so by considering the influences of mass media in relation to decision making research and the Elaboration Likelihood Model one of the most authoritative persuasion theories The book s analysis concentrates on the expression of cues or cognitive mental shortcuts in Darwin sceptic and counter creationist broadcasts A multiyear collection of media generated by the most prominent Darwin sceptic organizations is surveyed along with rival publications from supporters of evolutionary theory described as the pro evolutionists The analysed materials include works produced by Young Earth Creationist and Intelligent Design media makers New Atheist pacesetters as well as both agnostic and religious supporters of evolution These cues are shown to function as subtle but effective means of shaping public opinion including appeals to expertise claims that ideas are being censored and the tactical use of statistics and technical jargon. Contending that persuasive mass media is a decisive component of science religion controversies, this book will be of keen interest to scholars of Religion Science and Religion interactions as well as researchers of Media and Communication Studies more generally.

Democratic Experiments Brice Laurent, 2017-05-12

An examination of nanotechnology as a lens through which to study contemporary democracy in both theory and practice. In Democratic Experiments, Brice Laurent discusses the challenges that emerging technologies create for democracy today. He focuses on nanotechnology and its attendant problems, proposing nanotechnology as a lens through which to understand contemporary democracy in both theory and practice. Arguing that democracy is at stake where nanotechnology is defined as a problem, Laurent examines the sites where nanotechnology is discussed and debated by scientists, policymakers, and citizens. It is at these sites where the joint production of nanotechnology and the democratic order can be observed. Focusing on the United States, France, and Europe, and various international organizations, Laurent analyzes representations of nanotechnology in science museums, collective discussions in participatory settings, the making of categories such as nanomaterials or responsible innovation, in standardization and regulatory arenas, and initiatives undertaken by social movements. He contrasts American debates in which the concern for public objectivity is central with the French state experiment, the European goal of harmonization, and the international concern with a global market. In France, public debate proceeded in response to public protest and encountered a radical critique of technological development. The United States experimented with an innovative approach to technology assessment. The European regulatory approach results in lengthy debates over political integration. The United States relies on the adversarial functioning of federal agencies. Because nanotechnology is a domain where concerns over anticipation and participation are pervasive, Laurent argues, nanotechnology and science and technology studies more generally provides a relevant focus for a renewed analysis of democracy.
