Science In Society Classical And Contemporary Readings:

A Scientist's Voice in American Culture Albert E. Moyer,1992-09-23 In late nineteenth century America Simon Newcomb was the nation's most celebrated scientist and irascibly doggedly tirelessly he made the most of it Officially a mathematical astronomer heading a government agency Newcomb spent as much of his life out of the observatory as in it acting as a spokesman for the nascent but restive scientific community of his time Newcomb saw the scientific method as a potential guide for all disciplines and a basis for all practical action and argued passionately that it was of as much use in the halls of Congress as in the laboratory In so doing he not only sparked popular support for American science but also confronted a wide spectrum of social cultural and intellectual issues This first full length study of Newcomb traces the development of his faith in science and ranges over topics of great public debate in the Gilded Age from the reform of economic theory to the recasting of the debate between science and religion Moyer's portrait of a restless eager mind also illuminates the bustle of late nineteenth century America

Energy Transition in Africa Thokozani Simelane, Mohamed Abdel-Rahman,2012-03-25 The world's demand for energy coupled with a decreasing stock and supply of fossil fuels is propelling the transition to renewable sources of energy This global movement presents many opportunities and challenges to Africa If Africa can identify the opportunities and start to position itself with its abundant sources of renewable energy it stands a chance of being a global player in the production and supply of renewable energy Achieving this will however require a combination of effective planning and investment on infrastructure skills and technology In determining how this should be done this publication has brought together some of Africa's leading experts in the field The book sets out a foundation for Africa's role in harnessing renewable energy by highlighting an ideal mix of investment resource use skills development and infrastructure management which the authors believe Africa needs in order to migrate successfully to a green economy that is supported by renewable energy In policy terms a pan African approach is required to drive African policy on renewable energy that will cater for Africa's economies This should also demonstrate a political will to carry the policy through and to establish an environment that encourages private investment as well as providing access to carbon credit finances In this new era of what has been termed the second scramble for Africa the authors views on Africa's potential to supply renewable energy present hope that Africa can lead in the supply of renewable energy

Iain Wilkinson, Arthur Kleinman, 2016-01-26 What does human suffering mean for society And how has this meaning changed from the past to the present In what ways does the problem of suffering serve to inspire us to care for others How does our response to suffering reveal our moral and social conditions In this trenchant work Arthur Kleinman a renowned figure in medical anthropology and Iain Wilkinson an award winning sociologist team up to offer some answers to these profound questions A Passion for Society investigates the historical development and current state of social science with a focus on how this development has been shaped in response to problems of social suffering Following a line of criticism offered by key social theorists and cultural commentators who themselves were unhappy with the professionalization of social science Wilkinson and Kleinman provide a critical commentary on how studies of society have moved from an original concern with social suffering and its amelioration to dispassionate inquiries The authors demonstrate how social action through caring for others is revitalizing and remaking the discipline of social science and they examine the potential for achieving greater understanding through a moral commitment to the practice of care for others In this deeply considered work Wilkinson and Kleinman argue for an engaged social science that connects critical thought with social action that seeks to learn through caregiving and that operates with a commitment to establish and sustain humane forms of society
