The Oxford Handbook of Contemporary British and Irish Poetry

Peter Robinson, 2013-09-26 The Oxford Handbook of Contemporary British and Irish Poetry offers thirty eight chapters of ground breaking research that form a collaborative guide to the many groupings and movements the locations and styles as well as concerns aesthetic political cultural and ethical that have helped shape contemporary poetry in Britain and Ireland The book s introduction offers an anthropological participant observer approach to its variously conflicted subjects while exploring the limits and openness of the contemporary as a shifting and never wholly knowable category The five ensuing sections explore a history of the period s poetic movements its engagement with form technique and the other arts its association with particular locations and places its connection with and difference from poetry in other parts of the world and its circling around such ethical issues as whether poetry can perform actions in the world can atone redress or repair and how its significance is inseparable from acts of evaluation in both poets and readers Though the book is not structured to feature chapters on authors thought to be canonical on the principle that contemporary writers are by definition not yet canonical the volume contains commentary on many prominent poets as well as finding space for its contributors enthusiasms for numerous less familiar figures It has been organized to be read from cover to cover as an ever deepening exploration of a complex field to be read in one or more of its five thematically structured sections or indeed to be read by picking out single chapters or discussions of poets that particularly interest its individual readers

At Home in Time

Patrick Deane, 1994-09-13 The presence of these values Deane contends is not a curiosity but part of a vital and discernible tradition of modern neo Augustanism that has been previously overlooked By tracing these writers common interest in Horace John Dryden and Samuel Johnson he uncovers important links between seemingly diverse modern poets Deane challenges the whole interpretation of literary modernism which has traditionally linked the modern poets to the Romantics and seen both as anti Augustan Deane concludes that these modern poets share a ready and pragmatic acceptance of linear time within which all acts of artistic and social creativity must take place a crucial factor in both the form and substance of their writings That art language and society are inseparable under such conditions was a bracing thought for the young Auden but a potentially disturbing one for more recent poets
