Metacognitive Translator Training Paulina Pietrzak, 2022-03-11 This book explores new developments and objectives in translator education with a focus on metacognitive aspects of both translating and learning to become a translator The author reports on an exploratory study on translation graduates with particular attention to the effects of metacognitive awareness on their professional development The data collected show that despite the growing demand on translation services and advancement of translation technology there are still a great number of translation graduates who decide not to become professional translators The findings show a number of reasons why they choose different career paths and discuss the correlations between their self concept and their professional development as reflected in their academic performance career choice career paths job satisfaction and perceived success The book will appeal to teachers trainers and academics in the field of translation studies and more specifically translation as a profession and translator competence Control Motivation and Social Cognition Gifford Weary, Faith Gleicher, Kerry L. Marsh, 2012-12-06

Over the past two decades theorists and researchers have given increasing attention to the effects both beneficial and harmful of various control related motivations and beliefs People's notions of how much personal control they have or desire to have over important events in their lives have been used to explain a host of performance and adaptational outcomes including motivational and performance deficits associated with learned helplessness Abramson Seligman Rodin 1986 cardiovascular disease Matthews 1982 cancer Sklar Ryckman 1979 and post abortion adjustment Mueller Jones Kelley 1967 for example have suggested that causal inferences arise from a desire to render the social world predictable and controllable Similarly control has been implicated as an important mediator of cognitive dissonance Wicklund Kiesler Collins Miller 1969 Despite the apparent centrality of control motivation to a variety of social psychological phenomena until recently there has been relatively little research explicitly concerned with the effects of control motivation on the cognitive processes underlying such phenomena cf Handbook of Social Psychology John DeLamater, 2006-11-24 Psychology focusing on processes that occur inside the individual and Sociology focusing on social collectives and social institutions come together in Social Psychology to explore the interface between the two fields The core concerns of social psychology include the impact of one individual on another the impact of a group on its individual members the impact of individuals on the groups in which they participate the impact of one group on another This book is a successor to Social Psychology Social Perspectives and Sociological Perspectives in Social Psychology The current text expands on previous handbooks in social psychology by including recent developments in theory and research and comprehensive coverage of significant theoretical perspectives

Using Computers in Qualitative Research Nigel G. Fielding Raymond M. Lee, 1991-04-30 This is a comprehensive assessment of recent developments in the use of computers in qualitative research an increasingly important and rapidly growing area of interest among social scientists and graduate students Using Computers in Qualitative Research profiles and compares the principal programs available identifying their particular strengths and limitations It outlines the sorts of research problems that existing and forthcoming software can and cannot handle The contributors also draw on their experiences of teaching computer based techniques to suggest ways in which these could be incorporated into research methods training Reprinted with updated information on computer resources 1992 Return Migration Decisions Ruth Achenbach,2016-10-21 Ruth Achenbach develops a model of individual return migration decision making which examines both the process and the decisive factors in return migration decision making of Chinese highly skilled workers and students in Japan She proposes to answer a question yet insufficiently explained by migration research why do migrants deviate from their migration intentions and return sooner or later than planned or not at all Her study integrates factors from the spheres of career family and lifestyle and redefines stages in long term decision making processes thereby contributing to decision and migration theory She analyzes migrants shifting priorities over the course of migration including a perspective on life course and on the impact of the triple catastrophe of March 11 2011

Caregiving Systems Steven H. Zarit,Leonard I. Pearlin,K. Warner Schaie,2019-02-21 Caregiving has emerged as a critical issue in the second half of the life cycle With the growth of the older population there have been dramatic increases in the number of people needing care and assistance The responsibility for care typically falls on families at a time when they have limited resources to meet these needs At a societal level the need for care for growing numbers of disabled elders poses a major challenge for how to organize supportive services in an efficient and responsive system Bringing together multiple perspectives on caregiving the authors explore informal and formal family caregiving and the pivotal issue of how these systems interface and interact An overview of this variation is provided by examining family caregiving from three perspectives the effects of culture on helping patterns and family responsibility how different disabilities affect patterns of family care and longitudinal perspectives on the impact that caregiving has on family members
