Selling Outer Space Kennedy The Media And Funding For Project Apollo 1961 1963:

Selling Outer Space James Lee Kauffman, 1994 This text examines the impact of the Kennedy administration's depiction of Project Apollo as a great frontier adventure that continues to affect American space policy three decades later It explores how the media interacted with NASA to promote the idea of landing a man on the moon The Rhetoric of Project Apollo Kathy K. Previs, 2024-12-15 On July 20 1969 Americans not only landed on the Moon but the televised spectacle forever changed the ways in which news and commentary about historical events would be presented to audiences In The Rhetoric of Project Apollo Kathy Previs provides a comprehensive analysis of the rhetorical strategies that CBS News employed in covering the Apollo missions from 1968 1972 and documents the role that NASA's public relations office had in televising the exciting moonshots She illustrates how CBS's and NASA's symbolic representations followed a ritual view of communication enabling viewers to make sense of complex technological feats and scientific discoveries while garnering public support for the costly missions Based on four rhetorical categories nationalism romanticism pragmatism and technology Previs also provides an in depth analysis of which narratives have withstood the test of time in how Apollo is remembered on CBS News and across a variety of televised platforms including CNN the History Channel and PBS from 1973 2022 marking the 50th anniversary of Apollo's last mission From Cold War metaphors to now recognizing the role women had in Apollo's successes its story continues to resonate with and inspire audiences around the world Remembering the space age:

Proceedings of the 50th Anniversary Conference , Proceedings of October 2007 conference sponsored by the NASA History Division and the National Air and Space Museum to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Sputnik 1 launch in October 1957 and the dawn of the space age No Requiem for the Space Age Matthew D. Tribbe, 2014 This fluidly written first book uses Americans' reactions to the Apollo moon landings to examine cultural and social trends in the 1960s and 70s

Yearbook of Transnational History Thomas Adam, 2021-05-03 The Yearbook of Transnational History is dedicated to disseminating pioneering research in the field of transnational history This fourth volume is focused to the theme of exile Authors from across the historical discipline provide insights into central aspects of research into the phenomenon of exile in the nineteenth and twentieth century Both centuries have seen large numbers of people fleeing revolutions oppression persecution and extermination This volume is the first publication to provide a comprehensive overview over exiles of various political and ethnic groups beginning with the French Revolution and ending with the transfer of Nazi scientists from post World War II Germany to the United States This volume contains contributions about the refugees created by the French Revolution the Forty Eighters who were forced out of Germany after the failed Revolution of 1848 49 the anarchists Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman Vietnamese anti colonial activists in France the exiles of Nazi Germany and the transfer of Nazi scientists such as Wernher von Braun to the United States after World War II Lady Astronauts, Lady Engineers, and Naked Ladies Karin Hilck, 2019-07-08 The book Lady Astronauts Lady Engineers and Naked Ladies is a gender history of the American space community and by extension a social history of American society in the twentieth century during the Cold War. In order to expand and differentiate the prevalent postwar narrative about gender relations and cultural structures in the United States, the book analyzes several different groups of women interacting in different social spaces within the space community. It therewith grants insight into the several layers of female participation and agency in the community and the gender and race based obstacles and hurdles the female prospective astronauts, scientists, engineers, artists, administrators, writers, hostesses, secretaries, and wives were faced with at NASA and in the space industry. In each chapter, a different social space within the space community is analyzed. The spaces where the women lived and worked are researched from a media, individual, and institutional angle, ultimately revealing the differing gender philosophies communicated in the public sphere and the space community workplaces by government and space community officials. While women were publicly encouraged to participate in the American space effort to beat the Soviet Union in the race to the moon, women had to deal with gender based barriers which were integral to the structures of the space community, just as they were an intrinsic component of all societal structures in the United States in the 1960s. The female space workers, who were often perceived as disrupters of the prevalent social order in the space community and discriminated by some of their male colleagues and bosses on a personal basis, still managed to assert themselves. They molded pockets of agency in the space community workspaces without the facilitation of regulations on the part of NASA that might have provided them with easier access or more agency. Thus, the space community, a place of technological innovation, was not necessarily also a place of social innovation, but a community with a government agency at its center that mainly mirrored the current changing social order, conventions, and policies in the 1960s, as well as in the 1970s and 1980s. Nevertheless, the women presented in this book were instrumental in advancing and consolidating the social transformation that happened within the space community and the United States and therefore make intriguing subjects of research. Thus, this systematic analysis of the connection between gender, space, and the Cold War adds a new dimension to space history as well as expands the discourse in American history about gender relations and the opportunities of women in the twentieth century.

Moondust Andrew Smith, 2006-04-04

In 1999, Andrew Smith was interviewing Charlie Duke, astronaut and moon walker, for the Sunday Times. During the course of the interview, which took place at Duke's Texan home, the telephone rang and Charlie left the room to answer it. When he returned, some twenty minutes later, he seemed visibly upset. It seemed that he'd just heard that the previous day one of his fellow moon walkers, the astronaut Pete Conrad, had died. The more Charlie spoke, the more Andrew realised that his grief was something more than the mere fact of losing a friend. Now there's only nine of us, he said. Only nine. Which meant that one day, not long from now, there would be none, and when that day came, no one on earth would have known the giddy thrill of gazing back at us from the surface of the moon. The thought shocked Andrew and still does. Moondust is his attempt to understand why the Apollo moon programme has been called the last optimistic act of the 20th Century. Over a strange three year period between 1969 and 1972 twelve men made the longest and most eccentric of all journeys and all were indelibly marked by it In Moondust Andrew sets out to interview all the remaining astronauts who walked on the moon and to find out how their lives were changed for ever by what had happened Where do you go after you've been to the moon In addition to this question that would prove hugely troubling to many of the returned astronauts they also had to deal with the fantasies of faceless millions at their backs for this was the first truly global media event The walkers would forever be caught between the gravitational pull of the moon and the earth's collective dreaming
