Political Power in America Anthony R. Depew, 1910 The Politics of Persuasion Anthony R. DiMaggio, 2017-02-21 Examines how the US media covers high profile public policy issues in the context of competing claims about media bias Tracking the effects of media content on the public is a difficult endeavor and media effects vary on a subject to subject basis To address this challenge The Politics of Persuasion employs a multifaceted mixed method approach to studying mass media and public attitudes Anthony R DiMaggio analyzes more than a dozen case studies covering US domestic economic policy and examines a wide range of theories of how bias operates in mass media with regard to coverage of these issues While some research claims that journalists are overly negative and biased against government officials some reveals that journalists favor citizens groups Still other studies contend there is a liberal bias in the media a progovernment bias or a bias in favor of advertisers and business interests

Through his analysis DiMaggio is the first to systematically examine all of these competing interpretations. He concludes that reporters tailor stories to corporate and government interests but argues that the ability to manufacture consent from the public in favor of these elite views is far from guaranteed. According to DiMaggio, citizens often make use of their own personal experiences and prior attitudes to challenge official narratives. Routledge Handbook of Political Advertising

Christina Holtz-Bacha, Marion R. Just, 2017-02-24. This Handbook provides the most comprehensive overview of the role of electoral advertising on television and new forms of advertising in countries from all parts of the world currently available. Thematic chapters address advertising effects, negative ads, the perspective of practitioners and gender role. Country chapters summarize research on issues including political and electoral systems, history of ads, the content of ads, reception and effects of ads, regulation of political advertising on television and the Internet, financing political advertising and prospects for the future. The Handbook confirms that candidates spend the major part of their campaign budget on television advertising. The US enjoys a special situation with almost no restrictions on electoral advertising, whereas other countries have regulation for the time amount and sometimes even the content of electoral advertising or they do not allow television advertising at all. The role that television advertising plays in elections is dependent on the political, the electoral and the media context and can generally be regarded as a reflection of the political culture of a country. The Internet is relatively unregulated and is the channel of the future for political advertising in many countries.
