Garfield, Frances Garfield, Amy S. White, 2024-01-03 The Covid 19 pandemic underscored the essential nature of public health to a high functioning society across all realms personal governmental and corporate Corporations specifically experienced the significant business impact that a major public health event can have having to manage workplaces from a health and safety perspective address workforce disruption deal with vacillating demand for goods and services and manage the disruption of supply chains Entire industries were disrupted disproportionately like the service and travel industries In addition corporations saw the disparate impact on their minority workers bringing health inequities into sharp focus These and other consequences demonstrated the drastic economic impact that public health occurrences can have on businesses and the communities in which they operate Nonprofits and Their Networks Daniel M. Sabet, 2022-08-09 On the border of the United States and Mexico few policy issues face such acute challenges as those related to water Border cities face an uncertain future water supply low income neighborhoods often lack water and sewer services and water contamination poses a risk to the health of residents and the environment Responses by government agencies on both sides of the border have been insufficient Increasing economic development has mainly resulted in increasing problems These limitations of government and market forces suggest that nonprofit organizations the so called third sector might play an important role in meeting the growing challenges in the region Finding that these organizations do have a positive impact Daniel Sabet seeks to understand how autonomous nonprofit organizations have emerged and developed along the border He employs data from more than 250 interviews with members of civil society organizations and public officials surveys of neighborhood association leaders observations at public meetings and many secondary sources His research compares the experiences of third sector organizations in four prominent Mexican border cities Tijuana Nogales Ciudad Ju rez and Nuevo Laredo Sabet finds that political change is a necessary precondition for the establishment of an independent third sector The demise of one party rule in Mexico has given nonprofit organizations greater opportunities to flourish he finds but persistent informal rules still obstruct their emergence and development Sabet concludes that the success of the third sector will depend on the organizations networks He examines organizational ties to three key groups U S nonprofits the business community and government created methods for public participation and evaluates the importance of these connections for the future
