Literature as Translation/Translation as Literature Christopher Conti, James Gourley, 2014-03-17 Broadly conceived literature consists of aesthetic and cultural processes that can be thought of as forms of translation By the same token translation requires the sort of creative or interpretive understanding usually associated with literature Literature as Translation Translation as Literature explores a number of themes centred on this shared identity of literature and translation as creative acts of interpretation and understanding The metaphor or motif of translation is the touchstone of this volume which looks at how an expanded idea of translation sheds light not just on features of literary composition and reception but also on modes of intercultural communication at a time when the pressures of globalization threaten local cultures with extinction The theory of ethical translation that has emerged in this context which fosters the practice of preserving the foreignness of the text at the risk of its misunderstanding bears relevance beyond current debates about world literature to the framing of contemporary social issues by dominant discourses like medicine as one contributor's study of the growing autism rights movement reveals The systematizing imperatives of translation that forcibly assimilate the foreign to the familiar like the systematizing imperatives of globalization are resisted in acts of creative understanding in which the particular or different finds sanctuary The overlooked role that the foreign word plays in the discourses that constitute subjectivity and national culture comes to light across the variegated concerns of this volume Contributions range from case studies of the emancipatory role translation has played in various historical and cultural contexts to the study of specific literary works that understand their own aesthetic processes and the interpretive and communicative processes of meaning more generally as forms of translation Several contributors including the English translators of Roberto Bolaño and Hans Blumenberg were prompted in their reflections on the creative and interpretive process of translation by their own accomplished work as translators All are animated by the conviction that translation whether regarded as the creative act of understanding of one culture by another as the agent of political and social transformation as the source of new truths in foreign linguistic environments and not just the bearer of established ones or as the limit of conceptuality outlined in the silhouette of the untranslatable is a creative cultural force of the first importance

Trading Fish, Saving Fish Margaret A. Young, 2011-04-14 Numerous international legal regimes now seek to address the global depletion of fish stocks and increasingly their activities overlap The relevant laws were developed at different times by different groups of states They are motivated by divergent economic approaches influenced by disparate non state actors and implemented by separate institutions such as the World Trade Organization and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization Margaret Young shows how these and other factors affect the interaction between regimes Her empirical and doctrinal analysis moves beyond the discussion of conflicting norms that has dominated the fragmentation debate Case studies include the negotiation of new rules on fisheries subsidies the restriction of trade in endangered marine species and the adjudication of fisheries import bans She explores how regimes should interact in fisheries governance and beyond to offer insights into the practice and legitimacy of regime interaction in international law

The Ghosts Within Janna Odabas, 2018-11-09 The ghost as a literary figure has been interpreted multiple times spiritually psychoanalytically sociologically or allegorically Following these approaches Janna Odabas understands ghosts in Asian American literature as self reflexive figures With identity politics at the core of the ghost concept Odabas emphasizes how ghosts critically renegotiate the notion of Asian America as heterogeneous and transnational and resist interpretation through a morally or politically preconceived approach to Asian American literature Responding to the tensions of the scholarly field Odabas argues that the literary works under scrutiny openly play with and rethink conceptions of ghosts as mere exotic ethnic ornamentation

The Two Faces of Christianity Richard Markham Oxtoby, 2014-08-29 Applying Eric Fromm s concept of the differences between Humanistic and Authoritarian religions The Two Faces of Christianity proposes that Christianity consists of two distinctly different religions which co exist under the same verbal label The ethical teachings of that inspired Jewish religious genius Jesus of Nazareth which has traditionally been believed to be the core around which the religion of Christianity has been built constitute a Humanistic Religion In many parts of the Christian Church the tenets of that religion have all but disappeared under the spreading influence of the salvation theology of St Paul and his fellow travellers Examination of the guilt ridden mind of St Paul to whom the authorship of nearly half of the 27 books of the New Testament has been attributed throws revealing light on how this process has taken place Paul s notoriously neurotic anxieties about sex are just one of the more striking manifestations of the psychopathology of his split personality which has been a major influence in the process by which the Humanistic religion of Jesus has been transformed into an oppressive Authoritarian one
