The Tradeoff Between Number of Children and Child Schooling Mark Montgomery, 1995

Annotation World Bank Living Standards Measurement Study No 112 Assesses evidence of a negative correlation between the number of children born and levels of child schooling by examining their determinants In many developing countries as parents have fewer children they invest more in the health education and welfare of each child This quantity quality tradeoff is vividly illustrated in the recent economic development of Southeast Asia and Latin America In Sub Saharan Africa however the existence of such a tradeoff has not been established The few studies conducted to date reveal either no correlation or a slightly positive one whereby higher fertility rates are linked to greater schooling per child This study examines the determinants of fertility and of child schooling in C te d Ivoire and Ghana to assess evidence of a tradeoff using data from three surveys conducted between 1985 and 1987 The results are mixed In C te d Ivoire there is evidence of such a tradeoff in urban areas but not rural ones In urban areas female schooling higher income and improved child survival are associated with lower fertility and higher child schooling In both rural and urban areas of Ghana there is a tradeoff between fertility and child schooling with higher incomes and in rural Ghana with increases in mothers schooling Also available in French La
