Schools For Ontario:

Schools for Ontario David M. Cameron, 1972-12-15 The governing and financing of public education is everywhere a complex undertaking The 1960s was for Ontario a vital decade in education when the structure of local school boards provincial and federal financing and control the provision of academic and vocational systems and the Department of Education itself were all reconsidered and changed to attain greater efficiency and opportunity throughout the province This is a detailed case study in intergovernmental relations focusing on provincial local relations in education It offers a perceptive insight into the nature of the political system in Ontario by presenting a clear and straightforward analysis of the formulation content and impact of provincial policy upon the provision of public education by local school boards The text is divided into five parts The first part is an analysis of the provincial local context within which the policies of the provincial government were developed The second deals with the Ontario Foundation Tax Plan a programme of grants from the province to the school boards Part III is an analysis of two policies developed in a federal provincial context capital grants for the construction of vocational schools and the Ontario Education Capital Aid Corporation Part IV examines three policies affecting the structure of educational government in Ontario the consolidation of school districts in 1965 the reorganization of the Department of Education and the further consolidation of school districts in 1969 into county units In knitting together the highlights of the study Part V pays special attention to the complex but revealing interrelationship between problems policies and the intergovernmental political system of Ontario and shows how problems were resolved ameliorated or even exaggerated by the combined effect of the provincial and federal provincial programmes The focus then shifts to the years 1969 and 1970 to demonstrate the changed nature of provincial policy emerging from within an apparently changed context of provincial local relations Throughout the study the author's detailed knowledge and thorough understanding of the policies and processes of the educational system are evident He presents a mine of statistical information combined with a remarkably keen and concise analysis of the administrative process This study will be of great interest to educators administrators and students of intergovernmental relations The School System of Ontario (Canada) Its History and Distinctive Features George William Ross, 1896 The Schools of Ontario, 1876-1976 Robert M. Stamp, 1982 The Handbook of Canadian Boarding Schools Ashley Thomson, 1999-09-01 Private schools have frequently provided innovative experimental and creative programmes unavailable to students in the public system The most successful have survived and expanded by offering an educational experience widely perceived to be not just as good as that available in the public system but better In Canada private schools are enjoying an unprecedented popularity and while most are day only over sixty sustain boarding programs as do two off shore Canadian schools The Handbook of Canadian Boarding Schools presents information on the educational environment of each province then offers comparative information on each boarding school The information on each school includes basic data location history philosophy the campus boarding facilities health and safety administration and faculty student body and student conduct academic calendar and program information technology student activities and student conduct admission and costs The Handbook also supplies several appendices outlining important programs often available through boarding schools such as Advanced Placement courses and the International Baccalaureate For parents in Canada and abroad about to commit substantial sums to their children s education the Handbook of Canadian Boarding Schools is an essential tool to help them make the right decision It is also an indispensable resource for supporters of the public system looking for ideas that have worked elsewhere Schools for Ontario David M.
