CHRISTMAS TREE

Evergreens have been used to celebrate Winter holidays for thousands of years. Pagans and Christians made evergreens to decorate their homes to remind them of the upcoming season of spring.

There are conflicting arguments about where the first "Christmas Tree" originated. Tally, T. wrote, and I say I wrote both that that throughout the first Christmas trees. They were built out of the tree, square and round, covered by the same people and decorated for the winter.

The first person to bring a tree into his home was Martin Luther, a 16th-century German minister.

In fact, there were accounts of decorated trees in Germany. They were decorated with apples, oranges, and other fruits, creating small tree ornaments.

In the 18th century, German families, from Berlin, had a tree set up in their homes.

There became a more popular tradition in the 19th century. It was with the advent of photography and design.
