Science At Epa Information In The Regulatory Proceeb:

Science at EPA Mark R. Powell, 2017-08-30 The U S Environmental Protection Agency was created to protect public health and the environment and it has traditionally emphasized its regulatory mission over its scientific mission Yet for environmental policy to be credible with the public and policymakers EPA s actions must have a sound basis in science In Science at EPA Mark Powell offers detailed case studies that map the origins flow and impact of scientific information in eight EPA decisions involving the agency s major statutory programs Drawing on extensive research and interviews he provides the most comprehensive examination available on the acquisition and use of science in environmental regulation Powell describes the key obstacles to the practical efficient and effective acquisition and use of knowledge in what is a crucial but complex endeavor His book is an essential contribution for practitioners scholars and students and citizens who are determined to protect our environment rationally and effectively Strengthening Science at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency National Research Council, Commission on Life Sciences, Commission on Geosciences, Environment, and Resources, Board on Environmental Studies in Toxicology, Committee on Research and Peer Review in EPA, 2000-09-25 In the three decades since the U S Environmental Protection Agency EPA was created the agency s scientific and technical practices and credibility have been independently assessed many times in reports from the National Research Council NRC EPA Science Advisory Board General Accounting Office and many other organizations in congressional oversight and judicial proceedings and in countless criticisms and lawsuits from stakeholders with interests in particular EPA regulatory decisions As a previous independent panel put it in the 1992 report Safeguarding the Future Credible Science Credible Decisions EPA s policy and regulatory work receives a great deal of public attention but the agency s scientific performance typically receives a similar degree of attention only when the scientific basis for a decision is questioned Thus strong scientific performance is important not only to enable EPA to make informed and effective decisions but also to gain credibility and public support for the environmental protection efforts of EPA and the nation This report is the fourth and final one in a series prepared by two independent expert committees convened by the NRC in response to a request from Congress and to subsequent related requests from EPA The Committee on Research Opportunities and Priorities for EPA the companion committee in this study was charged to provide an overview of significant emerging environmental issues identify and prioritize research themes most relevant to understanding and resolving those issues and consider the role of EPA s research program in the context of research being conducted or supported by other organizations That committee published an interim report in 1996 and a final report Building a Foundation for Sound Environmental Decisions in 1997 The Committee on Research and Peer Review in EPA was charged to evaluate research management and scientific peer review practices in the agency The committee published an interim report in 1995 and this final report The Oxford Handbook of U.S. Environmental Policy Sheldon Kamieniecki, Michael Kraft, 2013 Prior to the Nixon administration environmental policy in the United States was rudimentary at best. Since then it has evolved into one of the primary concerns of governmental policy from the federal to the local level. As scientific expertise on the environment rapidly developed, Americans became more aware of the growing environmental crisis that surrounded them. Practical solutions for mitigating various aspects of the crisis—air pollution, water pollution, chemical waste dumping, strip mining, and later global warming—became politically popular, and the government responded by gradually erecting a vast regulatory apparatus to address the issue. Today politicians regard environmental policy as one of the most pressing issues they face. The Obama administration has identified the renewable energy sector as a key driver of economic growth, and Congress is in the process of passing a bill to reduce global warming that will be one of the most important environmental policy acts in decades.

The Oxford Handbook of U.S. Environmental Policy will be a state-of-the-art work on all aspects of environmental policy in America. Over the past half century, America has been the world's leading emitter of global warming gases. However, environmental policy is not simply a national issue. It is a global issue, and the explosive growth of Asian countries like China and India means that policy will have to be coordinated at the international level. The book will therefore focus not only on the U.S. but on the increasing importance of global policies and issues on American regulatory efforts. This is a topic that will only grow in importance in the coming years, and this will serve as an authoritative guide to any scholar interested in the issue.

Strengthening Science at the Environmental Protection Agency Act United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science, 2001. Saving Our Environment from Washington David Schoenbrod, 2008-10-01. Congress empowered the Environmental Protection Agency on the theory that only a national agency that is insulated from accountability to voters could produce the scientifically grounded pollution rules needed to save a careless public from its own filth. In this provocative book, David Schoenbrod explains how his experience as an environmental advocate brought him to this startling realization: letting EPA dictate to the nation is a mistake. Through a series of gripping and illuminating anecdotes from his own career, the author reveals the EPA to be an agency that, under Democrats and Republicans alike, delays good rules, imposes bad ones, and is so big, muscle-bound, and remote that it does unnecessary damage to our society. EPA stays in power, he says, because it enables elected legislators to evade responsibility by hiding behind appointed bureaucrats. The best environmental rules, those that have done the most good, have come when Congress had to take responsibility or from states and localities rather than the EPA. With the passion of an authentic environmentalist, Schoenbrod makes a sensible plea for bottom-up environmental protection now. The responsibility for pollution control belongs not in agencies but in legislatures, and usually not at the federal level but rather closer to home.

Learning from Science and Technology Policy Evaluation Philip Shapira, Stefan Kuhlmann, 2003-01-01. The contributors analyse and contrast the need and demand for RIT performance measurement and evaluation within the US and European innovation and policy-making systems. They assess current US and European RIT evaluation practices and methods in key areas, discuss applications of new evaluative approaches, and consider strategies that could lead to improvements in RIT evaluation design and policies Environmental Policy: New Directions for the Twenty-First Century 8th Edition Norman J. Vig, Michael E. Kraft, 2012-05-15 Available this summer in its Eighth Edition Rosenbaum's classic comprehensive text once more provides definitive coverage of environmental politics and policy lively case material and a balanced assessment of current environmental issues Notable revisions include A completely revamped energy chapter covering conventional energy policy as well as a comparative examination of alternatives to current energy production Expanded discussion of current U S climate change policy with attention to the role of the states the impact of global environmental politics and emerging technologies on policy alternatives Analysis of the Obama administration's energy agenda and its profound differences from Bush administration policies and the practical difficulties of creating an effective political coalition in support of the new policy agenda Greater emphasis on executive congressional relations in the policy making cycle Examination of changes in the environmental movement with particular attention to newly emerging cleavages over energy and climate issues A thorough updating of all policy chapters including an examination of such topics as mountain top removal the emergence of Bisphenol A as an endocrine disruptor issue and the new NIMBYism New and revised tables figures and other data illustrate key environmental information while a new detailed timeline frames the initial chapter's historical narrative of evolving environmental policy Human and Ecological Risk Assessment Dennis J. Paustenbach, 2017-05-22 Human and Ecological Risk Assessment Theory and Practice assembles the expertise of more than fifty authorities from fifteen different fields forming a comprehensive reference and textbook on risk assessment Containing two dozen case studies of environmental or human health risk assessments the text not only presents the theoretical underpinnings of the discipline but also serves as a complete handbook and how to guide for individuals conducting or interpreting risk assessments In addition more than 4 000 published papers and books in the field are cited Editor Dennis Paustenbach has assembled chapters that present the most current methods for conducting hazard identification dose response and exposure assessment and risk characterization components for risk assessments of any chemical hazard to humans or wildlife fish birds and terrestrials Topics addressed include hazards posed by Air emissions Radiological hazards Contaminated soil and foods Agricultural hazards Occupational hazards Consumer products and water Hazardous waste sites Contaminated air and water The bringing together of so many of the world's authorities on these topics plus the comprehensive nature of the text promises to make Human and Ecological Risk Assessment the text against which others will be measured in the coming years Shaping Science and Technology Policy David H. Guston, Daniel Sarewitz, 2007-02-01 With scientific progress occurring at a breathtaking pace science and technology policy has never been more important than it is today Yet there is a very real lack of public discourse about policy making and government involvement in science remains shrouded in both mystery and misunderstanding Who is making choices about technology policy and who stands to win or lose from these choices What criteria are being used to make decisions and why Does government involvement help or hinder scientific research Shaping Science and Technology Policy brings together an exciting and diverse group of emerging scholars both practitioners and academic experts to investigate current issues in science and technology policy Essays explore such topics as globalization the shifting boundary between public and private informed consent in human participation in scientific research intellectual property and university science and the distribution of the costs and benefits of research Contributors Charlotte Augst Grant Black Mark Brown Kevin Elliott Patrick Feng Pamela M Franklin Carolyn Gideon Ten N Hamilton Brian A Jackson Shobita Parthasarathy Jason W Patton A Abigail Payne Bhaven Sampat Christian Sandvig Sheryl Winston Smith Michael Whong Barr Decision Making for the Environment National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Center for Economic, Governance, and International Studies, Committee on the Human Dimensions of Global Change, Panel on Social and Behavioral Science Research Priorities for Environmental Decision Making, 2005-07-01 With the growing number complexity and importance of environmental problems come demands to include a full range of intellectual disciplines and scholarly traditions to help define and eventually manage such problems more effectively Decision Making for the Environment Social and Behavioral Science Research Priorities is the result of a 2 year effort by 12 social and behavioral scientists scholars and practitioners The report sets research priorities for the social and behavioral sciences as they relate to several different kinds of environmental problems
